

Vari Va To

Photo from the private collection of Rose-Marie Radley.

---

Mission Vessels of the South Pacific

---

GRAHAM WRIGHT

Graham Wright (deceased February 13 2020), M.B.A. (University of Sydney), retired as health services management consultant and company director, was employed by the church until 1985 in finance roles, the last as a chief financial officer at Sydney Adventist Hospital. He served the church as a local church officer, voluntary hospital board director, chairman of a conference aged care service, and two term member of a conference executive committee. He and his wife Lois had a son, two daughters, and six grandchildren.

---

The hundreds of boats of the South Pacific fleet, together with their crews and those associated with them (many of whom were Pacific Islanders) made an incredible contribution in support of the mission of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in the islands of the South Seas. The boats enabled tenacious early pioneer Seventh-day Adventists to open schools and training institutions, provide medical services, and plant church congregations widely throughout those islands.

The South Pacific Ocean, including the islands that are located within it, accounts for more than 20% of the surface area of the earth. As the Seventh-day Adventist Church began to grow in the region in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, with little or no travel and communication infrastructure, it was necessary to depend on shipping services. However, with limited commercial shipping available, and reluctance by other mission groups to assist Adventist missionaries, the Church recognized that it needed to develop its own shipping infrastructure.

The early boats in the Adventist mission fleet in the South Pacific were sailing boats. The fleet included schooners, ketches, cutters, sloops, a lugger, and yawl-rigged boats. From the early years of the twentieth century most boats had some form of auxiliary motor. From the 1930s, new boats were not equipped with sail and relied on inboard engines.

Pitcairn, the First Mission Boat

In October 1886, John I. Tay, an American Adventist ship's carpenter, reached the island of Pitcairn on a Royal Navy vessel and requested permission to stay until the arrival of the next boat. Within just five weeks, the islanders declared their allegiance to the Seventh-day Adventist Church. After leaving the island, Tay asked that an ordained minister be sent to Pitcairn in order to baptize the islanders. Elder Andrew Cudney of Nebraska agreed to go, and Tay was to accompany him.<sup>1</sup> Cudney chose to sail via Hawaii, but then found it impossible to connect with a boat going to Tahiti. Tay was waiting for him in Tahiti. A local Adventist purchased a vessel of forty-five tons for him to use and a crew of six were enlisted to take him to Tahiti and then to Pitcairn. They left Honolulu on July 31, 1888, but were never heard from again.<sup>2</sup> In 1891, what was thought to be wreckage of the boat was reported found on Tahitian shores.<sup>3</sup>

Meanwhile, the leaders of the General Conference had decided that an ocean-going vessel was required for missionary work in the South Pacific. In November 1887, the first decision was made which would, in 1890, lead to the construction and dedication of just such a boat. The action of the General Conference read:

"WHEREAS, The professed faith of Seventh-day Adventists requires them to carry the message of truth for this generation to all kindreds, tongues, and people; and

"WHEREAS, The islands of the Pacific Ocean are peopled with many thousands who have never heard the tidings of the soon-coming King and there are no regular means of transportation whereby missionaries may be sent to those islands; therefore it is

"RECOMMENDED by the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists in Conference assembled—"That a vessel of suitable size and construction for missionary purposes be purchased or built and equipped for missionary work among the islands of the Pacific Ocean."<sup>4</sup>

When plans were eventually made, $19,000 was allocated for the vessel.<sup>5</sup> A total of $16,000 was donated; $11,871.58 was raised through Sabbath School offerings. The vessel was a two masted schooner, 100 feet long, and named Pitcairn. It was dedicated on September 25, 1890.<sup>6</sup>

The Pitcairn was the first vessel owned and operated by the Seventh-day Adventist Church. It was built for the purpose of evangelizing the Polynesian and Melanesian island groups of the South Pacific. Its operation was administered by the General Conference. It made a total of six missionary voyages to the South Pacific, beginning on October 20, 1890.<sup>7</sup> Its final trip commenced on January 23, 1899.<sup>8</sup>

Early Missionary Vessels of the Australasian Union Conference Until 1920

Fiji and Eastern Polynesia

Simultaneous to the trips of the Pitcairn, the Australasian Union Conference took increasing responsibility for fostering church development in Fiji and the Polynesian island groups to the east of Fiji. In the period from 1897 to 1913, seven boats were acquired for service in Fiji, and Pitcairn Island.

The first boat to be operated under the Australasian Union Conference was built in Suva, Fiji, in 1897 at a cost of eighty pounds. It was a six-ton cutter, named the Cina meaning "lamp." The boat was used around the Fiji Islands until it was wrecked on a reef late in 1901. John Fulton lamented the loss of the small boat and the resulting impairment to the work of the Church in Fiji. He appealed for donations so that a replacement vessel could be acquired without delay.<sup>9</sup> He would have to wait many months before his request was granted.

Meanwhile, in 1902, a vessel was purchased for the people of Pitcairn by the British Consul in Tahiti. It was a fifteen-ton cutter. The vessel, which was aptly named Pitcairn, was not owned and operated as such by the Australasian Union Conference. However, it was used by the people of Pitcairn and the Church for produce trading and missionary work, and came under the command of Captain Griffiths (G. F.) Jones who was the resident Adventist minister on the island at the time.<sup>10</sup> This boat was condemned as unseaworthy and replaced in 1908 at a cost of A£356 by a schooner named Tiare meaning "flower."<sup>11</sup>

By the middle of 1903, John Fulton's desire for a replacement vessel for Fiji came to fruition. A new launch, replacing the Cina, was acquired in Fiji. Named the Adi Suva, meaning "Queen of Suva," the boat was largely paid for by Sabbath School offerings.<sup>12</sup> Then, in 1904, a small four-ton cutter was built in Suva at a cost of A£60. It was called Ramona after the daughter of C. H. Parker, and operated initially under the direction of C. H. Parker in the Lau group of islands in eastern Fiji, and later, for the Buresala Training School.<sup>13</sup> In 1906, a ten-ton schooner was added to the fleet in Fiji. Although it was a replacement for the Adi Suva, it was given the name Cina II. In 1908, the Australasian Union Conference recommended that the boat be equipped with an oil engine to supplement the sails.<sup>14</sup> Another boat, which was obtained in 1911, was also named Cina. This was a small launch of twenty-six feet used exclusively by the Buresala Training School to ferry students and school supplies. It served the school for sixteen years by which time it was deemed unseaworthy.<sup>15</sup>

In 1915, it was decided that a new boat would be provided for general use in Fiji. The plan was that it be built in Fiji and financed by Sabbath School offerings. In fact, a second-hand yawl was purchased from the H. M. Ford shipyards in Sydney and shipped to Fiji. The boat was named the Cina Vou, meaning "New Lamp."<sup>16</sup>

Also in 1915 the people of Pitcairn Island decided to build a vessel for their exclusive use in order to "take . . . tithe produce to market . . . as a missionary enterprise."<sup>17</sup> Tools, building materials and timber were scarce on Pitcairn.<sup>18</sup> In January 1917, after 13 months of work a schooner of forty-four feet was launched. It was aptly named Messenger.<sup>19</sup> Messenger was to take a number of trips between Pitcairn and Tahiti until 1920.<sup>20</sup> In early 1920, following a visit to Mangareva the boat was strained in a big storm, began to leak badly, and then became becalmed. After more than three weeks the boat was miraculously located by a steamboat, evacuated and set adrift to sink.<sup>21</sup>

The last boat acquired by the Fiji Mission before 1920 was a small vessel which was used by the Navesau School on the upper reaches of the Wainibuka River on the island of Viti Levu. It was named Rarama.<sup>22</sup>

The New Hebrides and the Solomon Islands

In 1914, the first two purpose-designed mission boats were ordered and built by H. M. Ford and Son at North Sydney. This ship builder was the major source of Sydney-built boats and design advice for the Australasian Union Conference until 1930. The boats were the Eran, a twenty-six-foot rigged yawl for the New Hebrides, and the Advent Herald a thirty-two-foot ketch for the Solomon Islands. The construction of the Eran was funded by Sabbath School offerings.<sup>23</sup> It capsized in a storm in 1923 and was wrecked at Big Bay, Santo.<sup>24</sup> It was rebuilt and eventually replaced by Eran II in 1935.

The Advent Herald was built for G. F. Jones to pioneer the work of the Church in the Solomon Islands. Coming from a merchant shipping background, Jones's first posting in the Australasian Union Conference territory had been in 1901 to the Society Islands (now Tahiti) in the South Pacific.<sup>25</sup> In 1903, after working in Pitcairn and the Gambier group (300 miles southwest of Pitcairn), Jones was ordained to the gospel ministry in Tahiti.<sup>26</sup> In 1904, he pioneered Adventist mission work in Singapore, and subsequently in the Dutch East Indies (Java, Sumatra, and Borneo) and the Malay States. At the time, these territories were attached to the Australasian Union Conference.<sup>27</sup>

Prior to leaving for the Solomon Islands in 1914, Jones was engaged as chaplain at the Sydney Sanitarium and Hospital in Wahroonga, Sydney. There he met a plantation owner from the Western Solomon Islands, Norman Wheatley, who was to be of enormous assistance in guiding Jones to a place where he could establish his work and provide a temporary crew.<sup>28</sup> The Advent Herald was sold in 1921.<sup>29</sup>

One of the issues that Jones had to address was the lack of crew for his vessel. In the course of his mission work, he selected, trained, employed, and converted people from the communities in which he was engaged. As the mission developed so did the number of young Adventist crew members who were to take their place as engineers, navigators, and eventually captains of the Adventist fleet.<sup>30</sup>

A second boat was made available for the Solomon Islands in 1916. It was called the Minando which meant "love."<sup>31</sup> It was a "motor dinghy," designed so that it could "travel among the shoals of the [Maravo] lagoon where the Advent Herald could not go without risk."<sup>32</sup> It was built at a cost of A£127, and financed by Sabbath School offerings.<sup>33</sup> Also, in 1916, a second boat was made available for the New Hebrides. The boat a twenty-one-foot launch, was named Tila.<sup>34</sup>

With the growth of the Church in the Solomon Islands, the Australasian Union Conference recognized in September 1916 the need for a larger vessel to support the work of mission stations being established. With a length of sixty feet eight inches, the 32-ton ketch Melanesia was the largest boat built for the Australasian Union until after World War II when three 65-foot boats were built.<sup>35</sup> It was seen as the flagship of the fleet for a quarter of a century (1917-1942).<sup>36</sup> Largely paid for by Missionary Volunteer Societies it was the first mission vessel owned by the Australasian Union to sail from Australia to the Pacific Islands.<sup>37</sup>

The Melanesia was to all appearances a much-loved vessel. However, behind the scenes it presented many problems. The first issue was that on its maiden voyage, Captain Jones received a very attractive offer from the French Government in the New Hebrides to buy the vessel. He cabled the president of the Australasian Union Conference and advised him of the offer. His urgent advice was to sell the vessel as he considered it unsuitable for its work.<sup>38</sup> It was later reported that Jones was unhappy with the Melanesia because it rolled too much, and tended to take water in high seas—issues that became apparent on its maiden voyage, which was rough in parts.<sup>39</sup>

By January 1918, a second problem had surfaced. Unexpected war-related issues were making it difficult to obtain fuel oil and deck space on steamers. Sale of the vessel to the French government in the New Hebrides at an offered price of three thousand pounds was agreed but the government did not proceed with the purchase.<sup>40</sup>

Two further issues emerged in 1920. The financial position of the Union Conference was under strain.<sup>41</sup> The matter of the sale of the Melanesia was raised again. It was considered that the Solomon Islands could be served by a smaller vessel. Further, Pastor and Mrs. Jones were unable to return to malarial fields on account of their health, and there was great difficulty and expense in securing a qualified navigator. The decision was taken to sell the Melanesia at the best possible price. An option was offered to the government of the British Solomon Islands.<sup>42</sup> It was not taken up.

The fifth issue was the conversion of the Melanesia to steam power. There were different views on the advisability of using steam, including the sufficiency of coal-carrying space. In early 1923 a Lune Valley steam engine, was installed. By January 1924, the boiler had burned out and the steam engine was removed and replaced by the original two-cylinder kerosene burning Kahlenberg engine.<sup>43</sup>

In August 1924, questions were again raised on the high cost of operating such a large vessel to the disadvantage of smaller vessels in the fleet. In August 1925, it was decided that the Melanesia should be sold or tied up and that no provision was made in the 1926 budget for the vessel.<sup>44</sup>

During this first seven years of operation, the procurement of an engineer for the boat had been a perpetual issue. On the maiden voyage of the Melanesia, D. Woolston had been recorded as the official engineer. He resigned after just a few months because he suffered severely from seasickness.<sup>45</sup> On that voyage, Jack C. Radley was recorded as being the mate. For a period of time he was left wholly responsible for engineering duties on the Melanesia.

Radley had no sailing experience prior to being asked to leave his studies at the Australasian Missionary College to assist Captain Jones with the Melanesia. He had no indication as to whether he would succumb to chronic seasickness, like so many others who were to follow. Further, he had no formal qualifications as an engineer. What he knew about engineering he had learned from private study. When Jones asked him to captain the Advent Herald, others were called to serve as engineer on the Melanesia. Several other individuals came and went because they were bad sailors or were affected by malaria. Because no replacement engineer could be found, Radley, who had just come home on his first furlough after his first four-year term of service, returned immediately to the Melanesia, despite having suffered from black water fever.<sup>46</sup>

Insurance for the vessel had also been an issue. Rather than pay an external insurance company, it was thought that it might be better to pay money into a reserve fund and the Australasian Union carry the risk.<sup>47</sup> Initially, it was decided that the sum of A£300 would be paid into a reserve account against loss or damage to the Melanesia.<sup>48</sup> By 1924, all mission launches and cutters were self-insured.<sup>49</sup> This issue of insurance cover for the Melanesia and the other mission craft was the forerunner of the self-insurance arm of the Church in the South Pacific. Initially known as the Melanesia Ketch Reserve Account, the self-insurance arm was later known as the ACA Insurance Policy and Fund and then expanded into the Risk Management Service.<sup>50</sup>

The Decade 1920 to 1929

Between 1920 and 1929, fifteen boats were brought into service across the mission territories of the Australasian Union Conference. In chronological sequence they were:

1. Na Talai, a 7-ton cutter, thirty-two feet long, was built in Fiji in 1920 for the island of Vanua Levu, Fiji.<sup>51</sup> It was used by the mission until it was replaced by Ai Talai II in 1976.<sup>52</sup>
2. Talafekau, meaning "messenger," was a small launch for use at Ha'apai, Tonga. It was built at a cost of A£60 and operated from 1921.<sup>53</sup>

3. Kaoriof, meaning “tell out the light,” was a twenty-six-foot rigged cutter. Shipped from Australia to the New Hebrides in 1923, it was located on the island of Ambrym<sup>54</sup> and wrecked on rocks in a hurricane in 1940.<sup>55</sup>
4. Manandae, meaning “love,” arrived in 1925. This twenty-foot cutter was initially operated by John D. Anderson on the island of Malaita.<sup>56</sup> It was the second of four such boats. The Minando in 1916 was the first.<sup>57</sup>
5. Ginetu, meaning “love,” also arrived in 1925. This was the third of four 20-foot boats for the Solomon Islands.<sup>58</sup> By 1928, it was stationed on Bougainville.<sup>59</sup>
6. Iendo meaning “love,” was the fourth twenty-foot cutter and also arrived in 1925. This boat was located at Batuna, Western Solomon Islands.<sup>60</sup>
7. Advent was a thirty-five-foot cutter brought into service in 1925. It was first located on the island of Malaita and later on the island of Choiseul, Solomon Islands. Its construction was funded by the thirteenth Sabbath School offering for the first quarter of 1925.<sup>61</sup> It was sold to the people of Dovelleville, Western Solomons, in 1937 for A£300. It was replaced by the G. F. Jones.
8. Herald was also a thirty-five-foot cutter built in 1925. It was located first on the island of Choiseul and then on the island of Malaita, Solomon Islands. It was also built from the proceeds of the thirteenth Sabbath School offering for the first quarter of 1925.<sup>62</sup>
9. Kima meaning ‘Love.’ This boat was located first in the Marovo Lagoon, Western Solomon Islands and then on the island of Guadalcanal. It was built as a result of the second quarter, 1925, Sabbath School offerings. It was also known as the Messenger. It was rebuilt in 1936 and renamed Marara. It was later used in Bougainville.<sup>63</sup>
10. Isar, meaning “strong shining of the light,”<sup>64</sup> was a twenty-three-foot launch transported from Sydney in early 1928 for use in Big Bay, Espirito Santo, New Hebrides, and Malekula Island, New Hebrides. Its total cost was A£480, raised by the Missionary Volunteer Societies of the Australasian Union.<sup>65</sup> It ran aground in August 1928, but was pulled off the reef by Jack Radley and repaired.<sup>66</sup> It was sold for A£80 in 1933.<sup>67</sup>
11. Loloma, meaning “love, was funded by the Sabbath Schools and, when built in 1927, was second in size only to the Melanesia. It was a forty-three-foot ketch.<sup>68</sup> Initially, it was taken from Fiji to the New Hebrides but returned to Fiji in 1930. In June 1933, the Fiji Mission recommended that the Loloma be sold and replaced by a smaller boat, about the size of the Talai. The reasons given were that smaller boats would be much less costly to run, and that it would be more easily handled by the local superintendent.<sup>69</sup> The Loloma was purchased by the Fiji government in March 1943.<sup>70</sup>
12. Veilomani, meaning “love one another,” superseded the Loloma as the second largest boat in the fleet at forty-eight feet. It was funded by Sabbath School offerings. The boat was built in Fiji in 1927 and initially served in Fiji.<sup>71</sup> Gilbert McLaren and crew sailed it from Fiji to Rabaul in 1930.<sup>72</sup> In 1937, it was stationed in Rabaul and used on May 28 and thereafter to assist with evacuating people from Matupit Island, close to the erupting volcano Tavurvur.<sup>73</sup>

13. Cina, built in Fiji for the Buresala Training School, was thirty-three feet long and replaced an aging boat of the same name.<sup>74</sup> Its construction was financed by the Week of Prayer offering from South New South Wales Conference in 1928.<sup>75</sup> Eight lives (missionary Fred Lang who was just thirty years of age, and seven advanced Fijian students, three of whom were married, leaving in all eight little children) and the boat were lost in a hurricane on November 23, 1930.<sup>76</sup> The Insurance Fund paid A£650 for the loss of the Cina and another A£783.15.1 was donated to the Buresala Disaster Fund.<sup>77</sup>

14. Matamata, “the Beginning,” was a small launch built in Port Moresby in 1929 for Vilirupu Mission, Papua.<sup>78</sup>

The Decade 1930 to 1939

Beginning in 1925, Lars Halvorsen and his five sons developed a business which would become the most famous boat building business in Sydney. The Adventist Church was to become a key customer of the business, particularly through two crucial times in its history—around the time of the Great Depression, as the sons were coming into the business, and after World War II.<sup>79</sup>

The first boat built for the Church was the Rani (meaning light), a 26-foot auxiliary launch for the New Hebrides completed in May 1930.<sup>80</sup> Later that year, the Rani was followed to the New Hebrides by the 45-foot rigged ketch Le Phare. This was only the second boat to be sailed from Australia to the Pacific Islands and was captained by John (Jack) C. Radley, a first-time sailor on the maiden voyage of the Melanesia. He was assisted by a European mate and a New Hebridean crew of five.<sup>81</sup> In February 1931, Radley, sailing the Le Phare, was involved in a significant relief mission which resulted in saving the life of Dr. Gaudiard at the Segond Hospital.<sup>82</sup> This mission produced a letter of appreciation from the French commissioner in Vila, and further cemented a previously poor, but then improving relationship, between the Church and the French government authorities.<sup>83</sup> The vessel was purchased by the American forces in World War II.<sup>84</sup>

In 1932, the 35-foot Na Cina went to Fiji (to replace the Cina lost in a hurricane).<sup>85</sup> In 1941, it was transferred to the Papuan Mission and later requisitioned by the army.<sup>86</sup> Also, in 1932 the 40-foot Portal went to the Malaita Mission in the Solomons. Known as “the boat that wouldn’t burn,” the Portal was ordered to be burned by retreating Allied Forces. The fire on the deck was extinguished, the boat hidden during the war, and later sold in 1954.<sup>87</sup> In 1933, the 41-foot Diari went to Papua and was later sold in 1959.<sup>88</sup>

Then, in 1935 the 40-foot Malalagi was deployed in Mussau and Emira.<sup>89</sup> Together with the Veilomani, it was used to evacuate people from the scene of the volcanic eruption of Tavurvur and Vulcan at Rabaul in 1937.<sup>90</sup> Both of these vessels were destroyed by the Japanese when fleeing the war zone in January 1942.<sup>91</sup> Also, in 1935 the 26-foot Eran II went to the New Hebrides to replace the first mission boat sent to this area in 1914.<sup>92</sup>

The eighth boat built by the Halvorsens, a 30-foot double ender with an open cockpit, was completed for Manus in 1936 and named Fidelis.<sup>93</sup> In that same year, Lars Halvorsen, the owner of the Halvorsen shipyard, died in the

Sydney Sanitarium. Pastor A. H. Piper wrote of him: "Mr. Halvorsen was always generously disposed toward the cause. Two years ago he visited our missions nearest to the ports in Papua, New Guinea, and the Solomons, and as a result altered the design of some of the later boats."<sup>94</sup>

Meanwhile, other boats were also brought into service in the 1930s:

1. Vinaritokae, meaning "everybody helped," was built at Batuna by missionaries and the staff of the school, with the cost of the hull met by Solomon Island church members who raised A£700, and dedicated in early 1932.<sup>95</sup> It worked in the Western Solomons. It ran onto a reef near Ughele in 1934 and was refloated some days later.<sup>96</sup> It was destroyed by gunfire by Japanese forces in 1943.<sup>97</sup>

2. Mizpah was built in 1934, the second to be built at Batuna.<sup>98</sup>

3. Marara, formerly the Kima, was reconstructed at Batuna, Solomon Islands, in 1935 for Guadalcanal.<sup>99</sup>

4. Dadavata was built in 1936, the third to be built at Batuna.<sup>100</sup> It was used in the Solomon Islands until sold in 1953.

5. Valentis, at forty-two feet nine inches, was a former pearling lugger, blown off course from the Caroline Islands to Mussau. The crew sold the boat to the mission in 1937 to raise funds for their return home.<sup>101</sup> It was refitted at Put Put (later developed as Rugen Harbor) for use in Bougainville.<sup>102</sup> However, it had a very short term of service due to its deteriorated condition.<sup>103</sup>

6. G. F. Jones was built in 1940 at Batuna for the Amyes Memorial Hospital at Kukudu in the Western Solomon Islands. At thirty-six feet, it was later stationed at Choiseul and then Kopiu. It replaced the Advent.<sup>104</sup>

Rabaul: A Central Base for Shipping Operations

Rabaul, located on the northeast coast of the island of New Britain, lies to the northeast of the main island of Papua New Guinea. The harbor, Simpson Harbor, and a large part of the town lie within the flooded Rabaul caldera, or volcano. The caldera has many subvents with Tavurvur being the most well-known for its devastating eruptions. In 1937, it erupted simultaneously with another subvent, Vulcan, and many people were killed.<sup>105</sup> In 1994, they both erupted again and devastated the township with 80% of the buildings collapsing under the weight of volcanic ash. After this eruption, the provincial capital was moved to Kokopo, about 20 kilometers to the southeast.

Rabaul was a central location for the Solomon Islands, Bougainville, and the north coast of Papua New Guinea. It was the headquarters of German New Guinea until it was captured by the British Commonwealth in World War I, when it became the capital of the Australian mandated territory of New Guinea. Following the 1937 volcanic eruption, the seat of government was transferred to Lae on the New Guinea mainland.

It was not until the late 1920s that Seventh-day Adventist missionaries established a permanent presence in the area with the arrival of Captain G. F. Jones at Matupit. With the purchase of land for a training school at Put Put, just to the southeast of Rabaul in 1937, the possibility of shipping repair and maintenance operations in Rugen Harbor, a part of the property, became a reality when the Valentis was repaired and refitted at the new site.<sup>106</sup> Rugen Harbor became the Adventist headquarters for shipping maintenance after the war.

World War II: 1939–1945

In January 1941, expatriate women and children in areas deemed dangerous began to be evacuated as a matter of priority. From the end of 1941, remaining expatriate mission personnel were evacuated on mission or other boats. The Melanesia left the Solomon Islands for Sydney with seven missionaries.<sup>107</sup>

In January 1942, Stanley Atkins who had been pastoring for the islands in the St. Mathias group, New Ireland, and Trevor Collett, who was managing a coconut plantation on Mussau and operating a timber mill on the nearby island of Emirau, decided to evacuate on the Malalangi. They travelled under cover of darkness down the coast of New Ireland towards Rabaul. It took them four days to reach the relative safety of Put Put Harbor and the new training school in East New Britain. The Veilomani had just left Put Put. It was carrying a number of evacuees. The Malalangi caught up and the boats sailed together. They were attacked by a Japanese destroyer and reefed before being demolished.<sup>108</sup> There was no immediately loss of life, although Atkins later succumb to injuries in Vunapope Hospital on March 13, 1942, and Collett was taken prisoner and died at the hands of the Japanese forces.<sup>109</sup>

Also, in early 1942, a group of twelve mission personnel, boarded the Diari in Vilirupu in the Papuan Gulf and made their way across the Torres Strait to Cairns, Australia.<sup>110</sup>

Mission Boats and the Armed Forces

Some Mission boats were requisitioned and/or utilized by allied armed forces during the war. After its arrival in Cairns, Jack Radley sailed the Diari south to Dora Creek, near Avondale College, New South Wales.<sup>111</sup> The Australasian Union Committee decided to renovate the vessel and lend it to the Australian forces for medical relief purposes in the South Pacific. Radley worked on the boat and was then engaged on August 11, 1943, by the army as master of the vessel (renamed AM400). He was discharged with the rank of first lieutenant on March 4, 1946. In this role, Radley, although under the full direction of the army, was able to support Adventist mission personnel, initially in the Papuan Gulf, but later in the north of the territory of New Guinea.<sup>112</sup>

A letter from the Australian Military Forces headquarters conveyed the very great thanks and appreciation for the offer of the auxiliary ketch Diari for work in operational areas and that the gift had been accepted by the Department of the Army on the understanding that, subject to the vessel still being afloat at the termination of hostilities and, further, subject to the possibility of being able to return the vessel to some acceptable location, it would be returned. No specific undertaking was given that it would be available for full time medical duties. The role allocated to the vessel would be as directed in the area of operations.<sup>113</sup>

Jack Radley sailed the AM400 from Newcastle to Port Moresby, arriving on January 1, 1944. In February 1944, the Australasian Union committee recorded that a letter had been received from the army noting its safe arrival, expressing delight at the way it was fitted out, and that it was immediately put into use to relieve sickness in an area where an epidemic was being fought.<sup>114</sup> At the same meeting, the committee also recorded a letter of thanks from the Department of the Army to the secretary for a donation by the Church of A£1000 to be applied towards the cost of medical services among the villagers of Papua.<sup>115</sup>

The Diari was returned to the Church at the conclusion of the war. However, in January 1947 a report was received from the superintendent of the Papua-New Guinea Mission which indicated that the condition of the Diari, the one vessel then serving that field, was such that it must be thoroughly overhauled in the near future.<sup>116</sup> It continued to serve in Papua until replaced by the Uraheni in 1960.<sup>117</sup>

In 1942, the Melanesia was offered for sale and purchased by the Australian government. It was used during the war by American forces, along the north coast of New Guinea and Papua. Damaged by Japanese planes, it was run aground at Douglas Harbor in the Milne Bay Province, but later repaired and refloated.<sup>118</sup>

Although the Japanese never invaded the New Hebrides, Allied Forces were stationed in the group. The Le Phare was purchased by the British resident commissioner stationed at Vila, New Hebrides, for A£1,500.<sup>119</sup> It was not returned after the war.

The G. F. Jones was requisitioned, effective from October 1, 1942, by the Officer in Charge in Australia, British Solomon Islands Protectorate, at the rate of A£12 per month.<sup>120</sup> It was returned to the Church at the end of the war.

The Na Cina was transferred from Fiji to Papua in 1941.<sup>121</sup> It was requisitioned by the Australian army for a settlement of A£300.<sup>122</sup>

The Davadata was requisitioned by the Australian government in June 1942 and a monthly fee of A£5 was offered.<sup>123</sup> It was returned to the Church after the war.

A number of boats were cared for by the people of the Solomon Islands. Pastor Kata Ragoso wrote:

The mission ships were all in good care after the missionaries left. The Dadavata was sent to Choiseul, and Viva and Liligeto cared for it. The Mizpah was cared for by Rini and Jimuru at Kukudu. The Marara was taken on May 5, and the Mizpah on July 25 [1942]. The two boats, Portal and Vinaritokae, which had no engines in them, were left with me. They were hidden in a river under two great trees. We built covers over them, and the boys kept putting green branches and green leaves on these, so that they would not be seen by the aeroplanes. It was not until May of 1943 that the Japanese discovered one of these boats, and they came in and fired on the Vinaritokae, and she was sunk. But the Portal was not seen by them, and we still have her. Apart from the Vinaritokae, our boats and our effects were all cared for.<sup>124</sup>

Those ships lost through enemy action were the Malalagi, Veilomani, Fidelis, Mizpah, Vinaritokae, Inedo and Marara. The boats which survived the war were the Eran, Melanesia, Rani, Diari, Portal, Dadavata, Silae, G. F. Jones, and Minando.<sup>125</sup>

The Post-war Years: 1945-1950

During the war years, the Australasian Union Conference executive committee had been planning for the eventual return of missionaries to the mission stations in the South Pacific and the replacement of the infrastructure destroyed or damaged during the war. In August 1944, the first major planning action was taken. Reports at the time indicated that it may be opportune to place orders for engines required for mission vessels in view of the improvement in world conditions, and the expected long waiting times for new engines to be manufactured and shipped once the war was over. Orders were placed for eight full diesel Gardner Marine engines. It was expected that these engines would be shipped from England about October or November 1945. The first was not shipped until mid-February 1946. Because of the delay in the delivery of the engines, it was not expected that the vessels then under construction would be ready before June 1946. Twelve additional engines were ordered in 1945 and 1946.<sup>126</sup>

In July 1945, the executive committee made its first decision to rebuild the mission fleet by acquisition rather than wait for the arrival of new engines and the construction of new vessels. Although it was not of a suitable type for mission work generally, the Endeavour was purchased at a cost of A£3000 and freighted to Tonga.<sup>127</sup> Its tenure was short as it was wrecked on a coral reef in the southern Ha'apai Group of Tonga on December 11, 1949. As it was breaking up, it was revealed to have been in poor condition. The Endeavour was replaced in Tonga by the transfer of the Lao Heni from the Papuan Gulf.<sup>128</sup>

In September 1945, the Church sought the return of the Melanesia from the Department of the Navy. The agreed price was A£1500. A second appropriation of A£1500 was authorized for repairing and refitting the vessel with all funds to be sourced from the Missions' Rehabilitation Fund.<sup>129</sup> However, the funds set aside were inadequate. At the end of October 1945, the committee accepted the estimate of A£2,950 from Reg Adams of Clayton & Co., for the refitting of the vessel according to the general plans submitted and approved by the meeting.<sup>130</sup>

However, on January 24, 1947, after the work was completed, the Melanesia sank at its moorings overnight, in Berrys Bay, Sydney.<sup>131</sup> As the vessel was almost completely renovated the resulting damage was considerable. Masonite and floorboards had to be removed and replaced; locks and windows made workable; engine, auxiliaries, and generators dismantled and overhauled; rope and tackle to be removed; and all accommodations repainted.<sup>132</sup> It was dedicated and left for Fiji on May 7, 1947.<sup>133</sup> It was sold in 1948 and replaced by the Viking Ahoy.<sup>134</sup>

In April 1946, the Church voted to purchase the Ambon.<sup>135</sup> Following the war, there was an acute shortage of shipping in the South Pacific. This resulted in considerable difficulty in transporting missionaries and supplies to the Solomon Islands and parts of New Guinea. W. R. Carpenter & Co Pty. Ltd. had offered to sell the Ambon, a seventy-six-foot supply vessel, for an approximate price of A£8500, on the understanding that they would be given opportunity to repurchase the boat when the needs of the Church had been met. The Ambon was noted to have been built in 1940, to be of very solid structure, and to be quite suitable for taking missionaries and supplies to island mission fields. At the time, the Ambon was being reconstructed after use by the navy and was to be powered with either a 120-hp or 160-hp Vivian diesel engine.<sup>136</sup>

In July 1946, the committee named the crew to take the Ambon to the Solomons. Jack Radley was to captain the vessel, with his wife as stewardess and a crew of five returning missionaries with very limited sailing experience.<sup>137</sup> Ten months after it sailed, the engine of the Ambon broke down completely. Repairs in England were out of the question. A new replacement engine was available in Sydney and installed. Compensation from the manufacturers was sought. After extensive negotiations, the parties came to an agreement, but at significant cost to the Church.<sup>138</sup> In early 1949, the ship was chartered to W. R. Carpenter & Co. and finally sold to another party for A£10,000 in February 1950.<sup>139</sup>

On August 2, 1946, a former naval launch of unknown name, which was being used by Vatuvonu School on the island of Vanua Levu, Fiji, exploded and all on board were forced to abandon ship. Jack Rowe, a minister and director of Vanua Levu district drowned. All others on board made it safely to shore.<sup>140</sup>

By September 1946, a major ship-building program was voted by the Australasian Union Conference executive committee. Authorization was given and appropriations provided from the Mission Vessels Rebuilding Programme for:

Three sixty-five-foot vessels, with twin engines, one each for the Solomon Islands, Bismarck Archipelago, and Gilbert & Ellice Islands;

Four fifty-three-foot vessels, with twin engines, one each for the New Hebrides, Papua, Fiji, and the Madang Coast, New Guinea;

Nine forty-five foot-vessels, with single engines, one each for Mussau, Manus, Atchin, Bougainville, Aoba, Gizo, Amyes Memorial Hospital, Eastern Papua, and the Papuan Delta.

Including the reconstruction of the Melanesia, the refitting of the Diari, engine replacements for the Portal, G. F. Jones, and Eran, navigation equipment and contingencies, the total amount to be provided through the Mission Vessels Replacement Fund was A£136,778.<sup>141</sup> The General Conference was a major source of the funds provided for the upgrading of the post-war mission fleet. In October 1946, a grant of US$200,000 (approx. A£60,000), was made for rehabilitation purposes. A further US$50,000 (A£15,150) was received from the General Conference in 1948.<sup>142</sup>

On Sunday, February 2, 1947, two vessels were dedicated at the Rozelle Bay Wharf in Sydney. The first was a forty-five-foot boat, which had been purchased from the Australian navy.<sup>143</sup> The second quarter Thirteenth Sabbath offering was allocated to provide the funds for this vessel with an objective of A£1,750. The cost of the vessel was A£3,500. The Sabbath School offering raised a total of A£2,756, which was A£1,006 more than the goal.<sup>144</sup>

The vessel was named the Dabarere, meaning “dawning of the light.”<sup>145</sup> It was not part of the mission fleet for very long. By late 1949, deterioration was apparent. Steamships Trading Company quoted a sum of A£250 for repairing the portion of the planks which showed evidence of dry rot. However, as they began their work, the maintenance crew found that the damage was much more extensive than at first indicated. A thorough investigation showed evidence of dry rot right through the ship. The engines were removed for later sale and the hull and fittings transferred to Steamships Trading Company in full settlement of the work already done.<sup>146</sup>

Beginning in early 1947, Halvorsen shipbuilders in Sydney had been contracted to build a total of eleven new launches for the Adventist mission fleet. Three of these were 65-foot vessels and eight were 45-foot vessels. They were progressively delivered from 1947 through 1950. Veilomani II was the first boat delivered.<sup>147</sup> The contract was the largest boat building contract the Church had ever entered. Including the eight boats built in the 1930s, Halvorsens built a total of nineteen boats for the Church. They were outstanding vessels and enabled the Church to provide exceptional maritime support service for its mission operations in the islands of the South Pacific.

The other vessel dedicated on February 2, 1947, was the Veilomani II,<sup>148</sup> named after the boat destroyed by the Japanese. It was sailed to New Guinea and stationed at Rabaul until the need for large boats to provide support to renew infrastructure destroyed during the war concluded. It was sold to a Chinese trader in 1952 for A£10,000 and was lost in a storm near Cape St. George, overloaded with copra bags.<sup>149</sup>

The second sixty-five-foot Halvorsen craft was dedicated on Sunday March 23, 1947, also at the Rozelle Wharf. It was named the Fetu Ao, meaning “dawning of the day.” It was sailed to the Gilbert and Ellice Islands to be used to begin church work in those two island groups by Pastor and Mrs. John Howse.<sup>150</sup> In 1955, it was turned over on a reef at Nunamea in the Ellice Islands. It suffered damage, but was able to continue sailing after some running repairs.<sup>151</sup> It was refitted in 1969 and sold in 1970 to the French government of the New Hebrides.

Silae, meaning “helper, was a small launch of twenty feet which operated for some time at Aore School, New Hebrides, was dedicated in May 1947 at Aore.<sup>152</sup> It had previously been unnamed and was sold in 1950.<sup>153</sup>

Two fifty-three-foot boats also came into service in 1947. One was the Lao Heni, meaning “messenger.” It was built in Sydney, dedicated on June 23, 1947, and sailed to Papua by Captain H. W. Reece.<sup>154</sup> In 1950, it was transferred to Tonga to replace the Endeavour.<sup>155</sup> In 1959, it sailed to Honiara to be stationed in the Solomon Islands.<sup>156</sup> The other ship was the Nakalagi. It was sailed to the New Hebrides, also with W. H. Reece as captain. It was reported that at the time of the dedication of the Nakalagi on October 1, 1947, there were thirteen vessels operating in the island missions and another ten boats were on order.<sup>157</sup> Both the Lao Heni and the Nakalagi had difficulties with their deep draft, which made them unsuitable for sailing through shallow coral reefs. A decision was made in 1958 to sell the Lao Heni.<sup>158</sup> However, it was not sold until 1974. The Nakalagi was lost in a storm at Aoba in 1964.<sup>159</sup>

On Wednesday, January 14, 1948, the first of the new forty-five-foot boats built at the Halvorsen shipyards was dedicated. The boat was given the name Malalagi II, for Mussau and Emira, replacing the vessel of the same name sunk during the war.<sup>160</sup> It remained in the service of the Church until 1972. The second of the forty-five-foot boats was named Light. It was used in Manus, then Madang, and finally in Papua from 1966 until 1972 when it was sold.<sup>161</sup>

The third sixty-five-foot vessel was dedicated on March 18, 1948. It was named Batuna and was for the Solomon Islands. On its maiden voyage, under Captain Jack Radley, the ship encountered a severe hurricane off Brisbane and had to shelter for five days behind Moreton Island, eventually arriving safely in Honiara.<sup>162</sup> After five years of service, it was sold in 1953 when the demand for large mission operated vessels had passed.

The third of the forty-five-foot Halvorsen boats was the Vari Va To for the Amyes Memorial Hospital on Kolombangara Island in the Western Solomons. On its maiden voyage, the engineer, Sam, had severe appendicitis off the New South Wales coast and the ship had to put into Brisbane where surgery could be performed. While Sam recovered, the ship continued onto Cairns where it waited for Sam to arrive by air.<sup>163</sup> The ship was stationed at Kukudu. It was in this area that John F. Kennedy, a future president of the United States and the crew of his patrol boat were rescued by Adventist villagers. The ongoing local mission ownership of the boat, partly financed from the United States, has been maintained. It was rebuilt and refitted by Cyril Vavoso in 2004.<sup>164</sup> As of mid-2019 it continues to be operated by the Solomon Islands Mission and is based at Kukudu.

The fourth 45-foot Halvorsen boat was the Devare, meaning "light." It was dedicated in September 1948 and sailed under Captain Reece to the Solomon Islands and then to Bougainville. In a severe electrical storm on its maiden voyage, it ran onto a beach about twenty miles north of Port Macquarie, New South Wales. It was refloated two days later with some slight damage.<sup>165</sup> It served for twenty-five years until sold in 1973.

The fifth forty-five-foot vessel was the Vinaritokae II, meaning "helping one another." It sailed out of Sydney harbour on January 6, 1949 bound for the Solomon Islands.<sup>166</sup> The Vinaritokae was transferred to Milne Bay, Papua New Guinea in 1959, and was sold in 1985.

Ka Seli, meaning "spreading of the light," was the sixth of the forty-five-foot boats. In April 1949, it was sailed to the New Hebrides by Captain Reece and crew.<sup>167</sup> It was blown ashore on at Port Sandwich, Malekula, in a hurricane in 1951, but was not too seriously damaged. It was transferred to West New Britain in 1959<sup>168</sup> and then to the Madang Manus Mission in 1974. It was sold in 1984.

The next forty-five-foot boat to be built was the Lelaman, also meaning “light.”<sup>169</sup> It sailed under Captain Reece from Sydney to Madang in early June 1949 and worked along the north coast of New Guinea.<sup>170</sup> It ran about 150 yards aground on a reef near New Hanover Island on the way back from Mussau to Madang in January 1951. It was not badly damaged and was salvaged by Captain Jack Radley and towed to Rabaul for repairs.<sup>171</sup>

The last of eight forty-five-foot boats built by the Halvorsens was the Leleo, again meaning “light.” After sailing for the New Hebrides under Captain Reece on August 23, 1949, it ran onto the beach at Crescent Head on August 26 after turning back for shelter from a storm.<sup>172</sup> It was beached for six weeks, then refloated and towed to Port Macquarie for repairs.<sup>173</sup> After preliminary work, it sailed back to Sydney for a thorough overhaul and sailed again on January 3, 1950 with Captain Jack Radley in command and R. E. Hare assisting. It had to shelter from storms on two occasions as it traversed the Australian coastline, arriving in Rabaul on January 22.<sup>174</sup> From there it went on to the New Hebrides. After 23 years of service it was sold in Fiji in 1973.<sup>175</sup>

At the same time as the Halvosen boats were being built between 1947 and 1950, a number of other boats were acquired.

1. The Central Pacific Union Mission acquired a boat to replace the aging Melanesia. The Viking Ahoy came to Suva from Brisbane early in 1948 on charter to the J. Arthur Rank's organization for making the film The Blue Lagoon. It had been built in Brisbane by Watts and Wright Ltd. to the order of a Mr. Griffith, owner of the Toowoomba Foundry, which built Southern Cross diesel engines. Two of these were installed in the ship, each generating 45-hp. In addition to the diesel engines, the vessel was ketch rigged with four sails. It had a length of fifty-nine feet and a beam of fifteen feet. It had been taken over by the Australian navy and used on anti-submarine service between Darwin and Timor. In 1946, it was purchased, refitted, and commissioned for the tourist trade on the Great Barrier Reef. It was purchased by the Central Pacific Union Mission, partially funded from the proceeds of the sale of the Melanesia in early 1949.<sup>176</sup> It was grounded in a hurricane in 1952.<sup>177</sup> It was again grounded, holed, and refloated in 1958 before being sold.<sup>178</sup>

2. Kima II, a small launch, was built at Batuna and brought into service about 1947. It was based in the Marovo Lagoon of the Western Solomon Islands.<sup>179</sup> It was replaced by the Valarane in 1966.<sup>180</sup>

3. Maino II, a small whale boat of twenty feet, was dedicated for use at Korela in the Papuan Gulf around March 1948.<sup>181</sup>

4. Taurana, a small cabin cruiser of twenty-five feet, was brought into service around 1948. It operated in the Bismarck Solomons Union Mission territory.<sup>182</sup>

5. Noutran, a small boat that operated in the New Hebrides from about 1948, was sold in 1969 and replaced by the Rani II.<sup>183</sup>

6. Kambubu, was a ship purchased in the second half of 1948 for the use of Kambubu Training School.<sup>184</sup> It was wrecked on Gazelle Point, East New Britain in April 1964 and replaced by the Wongawill which had its name changed to Kambubu II.<sup>185</sup>

The Development of Rugen Harbor and the Pinnacle of the Fleet 1950-1972

In 1951, the Coral Sea Union Mission decided to centralize its ship maintenance facilities at Rugen Harbor, in place of Rabaul and Batuna. Rugen as an ideal harbor located on the Put Put property to the southeast of Rabaul. It was the site of Jones Missionary College, which later became Kambubu Adventist Secondary College. Jack Radley was given responsibility for the relocation. The job required clearing land, and the construction of a slipway, wharf, workshop, two European-style houses, and several other houses for boats' crews. While the building project was going on, Radley continued to have full responsibility for maintaining all of the boats that were using the Rabaul slipway facilities owned by W. R. Carpenter and Company.<sup>186</sup>

Rugen Harbor had a double slipway. This had a formed rock foundation, cemented over to provide a smoother finish for safety and ease of working. Boats were moved onto hardwood cradles, which were pulled clear of the water on steel rails.

The construction program at Rugen Harbor began in late 1951.<sup>187</sup> In April 1952, the slipway was trialed for the first time when the Portal being pulled up first, followed immediately by the Kambubu, which needed repair work. Finishing work on the new facilities, the move from Rabaul to Rugen Harbor was completed in the second half of 1952. The mission fleet in the western Pacific was serviced by the maintenance crew at Rugen Harbor. Ship engineers and crew were trained.<sup>188</sup> The slipway operated initially under the leadership of Jack Radley and later, Ray Masters.<sup>189</sup>

In 1958, Masters described the facilities at Rugen Harbor as follows:

We have a store-room 20 by 20 feet, of necessity built on the water's edge with the slipway alongside. In the workshop we have lathes, drills, and most of the heavy equipment necessary for mechanical repairs. In an open shed between the slipway and the workshop we have a 12-inch circular saw, a 9-inch pedestal jointer, and a bandsaw for woodwork on the boats... The regulations call for the engines to be entirely stripped, the boat to be placed on the slip and inspected by government surveyors, under water, inside and outside of the hull, before a certificate for the next year's operations is issued. Ships from other areas come in as deemed necessary, and once a year we take tools and go to them. So far we have avoided breakdowns...Sunday to Thursday, we work from 7.30 till 4.30, with an hour for lunch. Friday morning is usually reserved for cleaning the compound, and the afternoon for Sabbath preparation...It is only five or six years since Brother J. Radley literally cut the station out of the bush, and we are grateful for the facilities we now have for the servicing of our little fleet.<sup>190</sup>

With the beginning of the decline of the mission fleet towards the end of the 1960s, the marine service operation was closed in 1972 after twenty years of service.<sup>191</sup>

New Boats between 1951 and 1972

Twenty-two additional boats were added to the fleet between 1951 and 1972.

1. Sea Mark, a thirty-eight-foot launch built by Norman R Wright & Sons Shipyards, was bought in Brisbane, possibly second-hand, and sailed to Port Moresby under the command of Jack Radley, arriving in Port Moresby in early April 1951.<sup>192</sup>
2. Laurel, a sister launch, was acquired with the Sea Mark. It was sailed to Port Moresby by Glen Radley, brother of Jack, together with the Sea Mark to serve in Papuan waters.<sup>193</sup>
3. Durua, a thirty-five-foot launch, was obtained around 1951 for use initially at Vaimuru in the Papuan Delta.<sup>194</sup> In 1954, it was transferred to the Sepik River region.<sup>195</sup> It was voted to sell the vessel in July 1965.<sup>196</sup>
4. Colleen was donated by a California doctor, Lyndon Taylor and his wife. The boat was sailed from Los Angeles, arriving in Tahiti in early August 1951, under the command of Pastor Walter G. Ferris.<sup>197</sup> It was later renamed Maranatha and sold in 1956.<sup>198</sup>
5. Lao Heni II was brought into service by July 1951 in Papua (and was purchased as either the Seamark or the Laurel). On December 29, 1952, an explosion on the boat in the Turama River in Papua caused the death of the wife of missionary Pastor Ernest Lemke and two of their children, David and Wayne. The boat was destroyed in the explosion.<sup>199</sup>
- 6-8. Diari II, Dabarere II, and Dani were each twenty-eight feet. Dedicated in Brisbane on April 23, 1954, they had been built by Norman Wright in Brisbane. The first two were used in Papua and the third in the Solomon Islands. They were sailed in convoy from Brisbane to their respective home ports by Jack Radley, Glen Radley, and George Rusa.<sup>200</sup>
9. Day Star and Day Dawn, both twenty-eight-foot launches, were also built in Brisbane and then shipped to Rabaul in mid-1955. They served in the New Guinea islands.<sup>201</sup> Day Star was sold to the New Ireland people in 1973. Day Dawn was sold in 1971.<sup>202</sup>
10. Kukudu was a small launch used in the late 1950s and early 1960s by the staff at Amyes Memorial Hospital and the Kukudu School, Kukudu, Western Solomon Islands.<sup>203</sup>
11. Itili was a work boat of thirty feet purchased in Suva for use in the Fiji Islands. The Viking Ahoy was offered for sale at the same time.<sup>204</sup>
12. Kasi was a launch of thirty feet operating in the New Hebrides from 1958.<sup>205</sup> Authority for sale was given in 1972.<sup>206</sup>

13. Uraheni, meaning “love” in Motu, was built by Mill Kraft in Brisbane at a cost of A£22,325.<sup>207</sup> It was dedicated on October 15, 1960, and sailed from Brisbane on October 20.<sup>208</sup> It was the last large purpose-built mission boat to be built in Australia and its acquisition and operation coincided with the impending end of the era of mission boats in the South Pacific. Forty-eight feet in length, it replaced the Diari II and operated in the Papuan Gulf until it was sold in 1983.<sup>209</sup>

14. Batuna II was a launch of forty-four feet, acquired locally in the Solomon Islands around 1960. It operated in the Marovo Lagoon area of the Western Solomons for a short time before it was deemed unsatisfactory and sold.<sup>210</sup>

15. Kambubu II was acquired in 1965 as the Wongawill and renamed.<sup>211</sup> Initially, it was based at Rugen Harbor for the use of Jones Missionary College, and later transferred to the New Britain New Ireland Mission and used around New Britain, New Ireland, Mussau, Emirau and neighboring islands until it was sold in 1984.<sup>212</sup>

16. Valarane was a launch of twenty-eight feet built at Kukudu in the Western Solomons by George Rusa, completed in 1965.<sup>213</sup> It replaced the Kima II and operated primarily in the Marovo Lagoon. The ship was reefed and damaged in 1974 during a storm, but refloated.<sup>214</sup> It was sold in 1983.<sup>215</sup>

17. Pathfinder was launched in 1965 as a floating clinic on the Sepik River.<sup>216</sup>

18. Raratalau, a launch of forty-two feet, was built by Henry Chow at Toboi shipyard in Rabaul for the Malaita Mission. It was dedicated on June 20, 1966,<sup>217</sup> later used by Atoifi Hospital, and sold in April 1983.<sup>218</sup>

19. Pacifique, a forty-eight-foot former pleasure cabin cruiser approximately ten years old, was dedicated in Brisbane on Sunday, October 9, 1966. After a fitout, it was valued at A$22,000. It replaced the Nakalag,i which had been wrecked in 1964. It was sailed to the New Hebrides by Captain W. G. Ferris and a new Hebridean crew to be located at Aore.<sup>219</sup> Due to rapidly escalating operating costs, a replacement fiberglass vessel was approved in 1971, but the Pacifique was not sold until 1983.<sup>220</sup>

20. Pathfinder II, a second fifty-two-foot floating clinic with twin aluminium pontoons, replaced the first Pathfinder, whose hull had rusted out, in 1971.<sup>221</sup>

21. Rani II, a twenty-nine-foot boat, was constructed in Suva by George and Ashton for the New Hebrides, particularly Aore School and Hospital. It was made of fiberglass; the first boat constructed of materials other than wood built for the South Pacific fleet. The dedication service was held in Suva Harbor on October 4, 1971. It replaced the Noutran, which had been sold two years earlier.<sup>222</sup>

22. Ahiana, a twenty-nine-foot sister ship to the Rani II, was also built in Suva for the Aoba District of New Hebrides.<sup>223</sup>

The Fleet Diminishes: 1972 Onwards

In December 1967, A. E. Jones, the secretary-treasurer of the Bismarck-Solomons Union Mission, called the mission ships the lifeline of the union mission. The fleet of ships was continually on the move around the various island groups. Trips of up to eighty hours each way were not uncommon. The Bismarck-Solomons Union Mission had thirteen certificated captains and seventeen men with engineer's certificates.<sup>224</sup>

But even in his glowing report, Jones acknowledged that "ships are expensive to maintain."<sup>225</sup> On the mainland of Papua and New Guinea, E. R. Piez, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Coral Sea Union Mission reported that throughout his union there were three forty-five-foot ships, one forty-eight-foot, and two twenty-eight-foot vessels now in use along the coasts of New Guinea. He added that these vessels were one of the big expenses for the union.<sup>226</sup>

Cost was becoming a significant issue. But it was not the only thing that saw the use of boats beginning to decline throughout the Pacific Islands. Other factors that influenced the size of the fleet were improving government, trading, and commercial shipping services; the introduction of air services; the escalating costs of health care and higher education, which diverted funds previously available for operating boats; and increasingly, stringent requirements and qualifications for captains and crews.

Thus, in the space of just six months in 1972, the Australiasian Division executive committee approved the sale of five boats, Light, Leleo, Malalagi II, Lao Heni, and Kasi.<sup>227</sup> In 1974, the Dani was sold, albeit with the approval of the purchase of a thirty-six-foot ferro-cement boat, the Famouri for Atoifi Hospital.<sup>228</sup> It was only in service from 1976 to 1982, did not handle well, and sank at its moorings after being approved for sale.

Between 1980 and 1984, twelve more ships were authorized for sale. Cost was now becoming a major factor. In a 1982 article, Pastor Rex Moe, president of the Western Pacific Union Mission, instanced the prohibitive cost of operating just one boat in Vanuatu. The Pacifique ran for just 141 hours in 1981 at a total cost of $12,126 (excluding the cost of free labor) or $86 per hour. Comparative commercial air and sea travel alternatives varied from 1% to 4% of the cost of boat operation.<sup>229</sup>

Following the article by Pastor Moe, there was a further sale of a number of vessels. In November 1982, the sale of five vessels for the "best available price," was authorized. They were the Ahiana from Aore, Vanuatu; the Pacifique, also from Aore, Vanuatu; the Famouri from Batuna in the Solomon Islands, the Uraheni from Kikori, Papua, and the Ai Talai II, from Suva, Fiji. Ai Talai II had only been in service for six years. Ahiana was not sold. After a gradual but complete remake between 2012 and 2017, it serves the transportation needs of Aore Adventist Academy.<sup>230</sup>

Other approvals for the sale of boats were the Raratalau in March 1983; the Valarane in April 1983; the Uraheni again approved for sale in September 1983; and the Ka seli, Vinaritokae, and Kambubu II in April 1984.<sup>231</sup>

There were just a few ships acquired during the period. The Ai Talai II was built in Suva and launched in 1976. It was a large steel boat of fifty feet.<sup>232</sup> Famouri also arrived in 1976.<sup>233</sup> Three seven-meter "banana boats" were purchased in 1991 for Papua New Guinea. They were located at Alotau, Daru, and Kikori, all in Papua.<sup>234</sup> The Kamala and the Stirling were acquired for Papua New Guinea in 2000. The Kamala was a forty-two-foot steel-hulled vessel used as a sea ambulance in the Sepik Province. The thirty-three-foot Stirling was a former Australian navy fiberglass vessel.<sup>235</sup>

A number of vessels were donated or supplied by supportive independent ministries. In 1979, Silivia, a jet boat for the Ha'apai Group, Tonga was donated by Adventist members in the United States through Pastor Jim Harris who was the Australasian Division youth director. It was built at Mount Maunganui, New Zealand, at a cost of A$35,000.<sup>236</sup> The Rubie, an eight-meter sloop for the Kiribati Mission, was donated by Search for One of Oregon, and manned by volunteer expatriates.<sup>237</sup> Lavinia and Windago were two vessels operated for periods by Pacific Yacht Ministries in the Solomon Islands and Vanuatu. Others, including two sailing catamarans, Another Angel and McDive, were involved in other areas of South Pacific at other times.<sup>238</sup>

L'Oiseau, a refitted Adelaide-built steel boat was provided in 2005 for the Eastern Solomon Islands by donations and supported by volunteer medical personnel. The cost was A$100,000.<sup>239</sup> And in 2008, the first of a fleet of Medisonships began serving as floating clinics from a base in Kukudu. They were supported by Sonship, a recognized and supportive independent ministry in the South Pacific Division.<sup>240</sup>

Smaller Boats

Apart from the larger boats over twenty feet that have been listed, there were many smaller boats used. Some were named and their names have been recorded, others were either unnamed or their names have been lost. They were referred to as "my little boat" or "our little launch" or a similar reference. Sometimes they were mentioned in terms of the name of the user, or by their location. This was particularly true in the case of union conference budget papers where appropriations were made for launch expense at different locations with only a few boats actually being called by name.

There were many examples of smaller boats. Examples include:

In 1927, there was a boat for the Society Islands costing A£100 purchased from the 1927 Week of Prayer offering from Tasmania.<sup>241</sup>

In 1930, the Bertha Douglas, a sixteen-foot launch built by Pastor Ross James in Port Moresby was used by C. J. Howell at Vailala in the Papuan Gulf.<sup>242</sup>

In 1932, the Fiji Mission took action to replace the students' boat, Tovata, using a A£65 hurricane grant from the Insurance Fund.<sup>243</sup>

In 1946, the Australasian Union Conference Committee took action to endorse the action of the Fiji Mission to purchase a twenty-four-foot ex-naval launch for the Vatuvonu District at a cost of A£220. This action was taken two weeks after the old launch exploded and killed Jack Rowe, director of the Vanua Levu District.<sup>244</sup>

In 1967, a fifteen-foot Caribbean fiber-glass hull runabout, with canopy, powered by a 75- horsepower Evinrude outboard motor, was donated for the use of Dr. Lyn McMahon at Atoifi Hospital, Malaita.<sup>245</sup>

In Retrospect

At the launch in Suva of the Ai Talai II in 1976, Pastor L. L. Butler, treasurer of the Australasian Division, reported that the division at one time had as many as twenty mission ships in island service. A number had been replaced by planes, but twelve were still operating.<sup>246</sup> In the earlier years of mission work in the South Pacific and in the years following the war, the Church's own fleet was essential. The first mission sites were generally in isolated outposts, not desired or previously vacated by other mission organizations. There were either very limited or no commercial transport alternatives. The Adventist fleet was vital to the establishment and growth of the Church. But after 1976, the South Pacific Division added only two boats, both second-hand, of more than thirty-feet to the South Pacific fleet. The introduction of planes, and the financial demands of institutions such as the Sydney Adventist Hospital, Avondale College, and Pacific Adventist University, led to a rapid and then ongoing decline in the mission fleet.

In retrospect, the relationship that the Church in Australia developed with the Halvorsen family and ship-building operation in Sydney, was an inspired move. Although other denominations had a limited relationship with the family business, the Seventh-day Adventist Church was a key customer of the firm at two crucial times in their history—around the time of the Great Depression as the sons were coming into the business, and after World War II. In return, the church received practically designed and beautifully crafted vessels, with a history of longevity in service unmatched by boats provided from any other source.

The early years of the twentieth century Adventist church members in Australia and New Zealand were intensely interested in the growing impact of the message of the Church in the South Pacific Islands. This can be seen in the pages of The Australasian Record, and the use of Adventist mission boats as a proxy for financial involvement with this rewarding aspect of Christian witness and service. From the Pitcairn (largely funded by worldwide Sabbath School offerings), to the Melanesia (funded by Missionary Volunteer Societies), to the Cina (funded by Week of Prayer Offerings), and to a wide variety of boats e.g. Eran, Veilomani, Diari, and Dabarere, funded by Thirteenth Sabbath School Offerings, there were consistent and persistent appeals for sacrificial giving for boats. These appeals were regularly and wildly successful, both in terms of the amounts donated and the impact—direct and indirect—of the mission fleet on those it supported. The boats certainly contributed to the remarkable growth of the church in the Pacific Islands.

The many boats of the South Pacific fleet, together with their crews and those associated with them (many of whom were Pacific Islanders) made an incredible contribution in support of the mission of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in the islands of the South Seas. Without these boats, it is difficult to imagine how the work of the gospel would have progressed in the remarkable way that it did. Although other Christian groups were established earlier in the Pacific islands, gained an apparently strong foothold and exclusive access to selected and defined areas, the boats enabled tenacious early pioneer Seventh-day Adventists to open schools and training institutions, provide medical services, and plant church congregations widely throughout those islands.

---

SOURCES

"A Motor Boat for the Solomon Islands." Australasian Record, December 13, 1915.

"A new launch, the Kambubu..." Australasian Record, November 15, 1948.

"A Tribute to Garimas Tavukia." Australasian Record, September 3, 1973.

Adams, Muriel. "By Faith Alone." Australasian Record, May 14, 1956.

"After a brief dedicatory service..." Australasian Record, July 7, 1947.

Aldridge, Roy. "Five Years in the Sepik- Resourceful Practical and Competent Ministry." Journal of Pacific Adventist History 7, no. 2 (June 2007): 30-33.

Anderson, A. W. "Cause for Rejoicing." Australasian Record, November 17, 1930.

Anderson, A. W. "Dedication of the Papuan Mission Boat." Australasian Record, June 19, 1933.

Anderson, J. D. "A Trip on the Manandae." Australasian Record, September 6, 1926.

Anderson, J. D. "Solomon Islands." Australasian Record, July 4, 1932.

Anderson, J. D. "Our First Sabbath School Mission Boat Reaches the Solomons." Australasian Record, June 29, 1925.

Anderson John D. and Mary Guinevere Anderson. "To Melanesia with Love: Part One." Australasian Record, July 7, 1980.

"Another 45-foot mission vessel..." Australasian Record, October 4, 1948.

"Another 45-foot vessel..." Australasian Record, January 24, 1949.

Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes. South Pacific Division of the General Conference archives, Wahroonga, New South Wales, Australia.

Australasian Inter Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes. South Pacific Division of the General Conference Archives, Wahroonga, New South Wales, Australia.

Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes. South Pacific Division of the General Conference Archives, Wahroonga, New South Wales, Australia.

Bahler, M. J. "Sailing of the Pitcairn. ARH, November 4, 1890.

Barrett, A. R. "Dedication and Farewell." Australasian Record, February 8, 1932.

Barrett, A. R. "The Fifteenth Anniversary." Australasian Record, September 2, 1929.

"Boat for Mussau." Australasian Record, March 4, 1935.

Brandstater, G. "Life Sketch of the Late J.C. Radley." Australasian Record, April 1, 1968.

Broad, W. O. "Launching a New Boat." Australasian Record, January 13, 1936.

Butler, G. I. "A Trip to Pitcairn Island." ARH, April 24, 1888.

Cady, B. J. "The Schooner Tiare." Union Conference Record, September 21, 1908, 38-39.

Cady, B. J. "Words of Courage from Central Polynesia." Australasian Record, September 4, 1911.

Campbell, A. J. "After Four Years." Australasian Record, February 25, 1946.

Campbell, A. J. "Eathquakes and Volcanoes." Australasian Record, June 28, 1937.

Campbell, A. J. "The Diari Comes to Aroma." Australasian Record, June 5, 1944.

"Captain Elijah of Fiji." Australasian Record, June 16, 1947.

"Caught in a severe..." Australasian Record, October 11, 1948.

Central Pacific Union Mission Executive Committee Minutes. South Pacific Division of the General Conference Archives, Wahrenonga, New South Wales, Australia.

Colandolu, Ratu Meli. "The Hurricane at Buresala, Fiji." Australasian Record, February 2, 1931.

Cook, Merian M. "Missionary Nurse at Kukundu [sic]." Australasian Record, August 14, 1961.

Coombe, Raymond. "Personal Reflections." Australasian Record, August 9, 1976.

Coral Sea Union Mission Executive Committee Minutes. South Pacific Division of the General Conference Archives, Wahrenonga, New South Wales, Australia.

Cudney, A. J. "From Honolulu to Pitcairn." ARH, August 21, 1888.

Currow, Stephen J. "Pioneer Missionaries to Fiji: Arthur and Louis Currow." Journal of Pacific Adventist History 2, no. 2 (December 2002): 29-37

Dawson, A. W. "Australasian Conference Association Limited." Australasian Record, December 4, 1950.

Dawson, Ira F. "Returned from the Sea." Australasian Record, July 9, 1983.

"During the time of the volcanic eruptiom..." Australasian Record, June 21, 1937.

Edwards, Eva. "Thirteenth Sabbath at Wainibuka School, Fiji." Australasian Record, October 31, 1927.

Edwards, Eva. "Youthful Enthusiasts in Fiji." Australasian Record, August 22, 1927.

Ellison, R. M. "A History-Making Meeting." Australasian Record, December 10, 1951.

"A Fatal Accident in Papua: Missionary Wife and Two Children Drowned." Australasian Record, January 26, 1953.

Ferris, A. H. "Dedication of the Ka Sali [sic]." Australasian Record, May 2, 1949.

Ferris, W. G. "The Loss of the Endeavour." Australasian Record, February 6, 1950.

Ferris, W. G. "With the Yacht Colleen Across the Pacific." Australasian Record, November 11, 1951.

"Flash Point." Australasian Record, December 1, 1969.

Frame, R. R. "Building a Boat for God." Australasian Record, November 25, 1965.

Frame, R. R. "Heard at the CPUM Conclave." Australasian Record, February 24, 1958.

Frame, R. R. "New Mission Ship Sails for Papua." Australasian Record, November 12, 1960.

Fulton, J. E. "The Wreck of the Cina." Union Conference Record, January 1, 1902.

Gates, E. H. "From San Francisco to Sydney." Union Conference Record, July 1, 1903.

Gates, E. H. "From San Francisco to Sydney, Concluded." Union Conference Record, July 15, 1903.

Gates, E. H. "Last Cruise of the Pitcairn." Union Conference Record, July 12, 1899.

Gates, E. H. "Mission Notes." Union Conference Record, December 1, 1901.

"General Letter from Pastor E. H. Gates." Union Conference Record, April 1, 1903.

Gillis, S. K. "Dedication of the Maino II." Australasian Record, May 24, 1948.

"Good News for Our Sabbath Schools." Australasian Record, June 8, 1925.

"Good News from Pitcairn Island." Australasian Record, July 30, 1917.

Greive, Constance M. "Smiling 'Seven Day' Boys from New Guinea." Australasian Record, October 28, 1946.

Hall, R. W. "The Hand of the Lord at Batuna." Australasian Record, July 29, 1974.

Hammond, T. W. "Our Week of Prayer Offerings." Australasian Record, May 7, 1928.

Hare, R. E. "They That Go Down to the Sea in Ships." Review and Herald, June 24, 1948.

"Health Yacht Dedicated Despite Setbacks." Australasian Record, October 29, 2005.

Hindson, Anna L. "What Progress Are We Making?" Australasian Record, June 23, 1930.

Holmes, J. P. "My First Visit to the Solomom Islands." Australasian Record, February 7, 1955.

Howse, E. W. "Melanesia Retired," Australasian Record, April 4, 1949.

Howse, E. W. "Treasurer's Report." Australasian Record, December 5, 1966.

"Hurricane in the New Hebrides." Australasian Record, April 29, 1940.

"In a letter from Brother Adams..." Australasian Record, June 5, 1916.

"In Perils by Sea." Australasian Record, February 19, 1951.

"Is It the Phoebe Chapman?" ARH, February 3, 1891.

"It will be recalled..." Australasian Record, September 27, 1965.

"People and Events." Australasian Record, September 27, 1965.

"Items of General Interest." Union Conference Record, October 1, 1902.

J. C. Radley. Service Record. Australian Army, 1943-1946. Personal archival collection of Rose-Marie Radley.

James, J. Ross. "Launching the New Boat, Papua." Australasian Record, August 4, 1930.

James, Ross. "News from Big Bay North Santo." Australasian Record, May 28, 1923.

Jones, A. E. "The Earth Trembled During Bismarck Solomons Union Mission Annual Meeting Held December 1967." Australasian Record, February 26, 1968.

Jones, G. F. "The Melanesia: Her Maiden Trip." Australasian Record, August 27, 1917.

Jones, G. F. "Solomon Islands." Australasian Record, August 10, 1914.

Jones, M. V. "En Route to the Solomon Islands." Australasian Record, August 27, 1917.

Lane, [Ruth N.] "The Sad Story Told." Australasian Record, January 5, 1931.

"The Launching of the 'Messenger.'" Australasian Record, March 12, 1917.

Lawson, T. C. "A New Ship for Papua." Australasian Record, June 23, 1947.

Lawson, T. C. "Sabbath School News Flash." Australasian Record, September 29, 1947.

Ledger cards, Papuan Mission, Australasian Union Conference, for Diari Expense and Reconditioning of Diari by J. C. Radley 1942, 1943. South Pacific Division of the General Conference Archives, Wahroonga, New South Wales, Australia.

Lee, Gordon A. "Central Pacific Union Mission Round-Up." Australasian Record, April 24, 1970.

"The little cutter..." Union Conference Record, August 1, 1904.

Lock, W. N. "A Visit along the Coast of Papua." Australasian Record, August 26, 1929.

Lyndon, Frank E. "Eastern Polynesian Mission Field." Australasian Record, April 16, 1916.

Maberly, F. T. "New Craft for Mission Field." Australasian Record, June 26, 1967.

Manners, Bruce. "New Life for Old Mission Ship." Record, Februs 7, 2004.

Marks, Barbara. "The Uraheni at Bundaberg." Australasian Record, November 11, 1960.

Martin, H. R. "Educational work in Fiji." The Missionary Leader, July 1927.

Martin, H. R. "In Dangers of the Sea." Australasian Record, November 29, 1920.

Martin, Prudence E. "From Vanua Levu to the Conference at Suva." Australasian Record, October 4, 1920.

Masters, J. R. "Your Marine Department." Australasian Record, March 3, 1958.

Masters, Mrs. J. R. "Marine service Trains National Captains and Engineers." Australasian Record, May 31, 1965.

Masters, Mrs. Ray. "A Missionary's Wife Looks Round the Bismark-Solomons Union." Australasian Record, October 26, 1959.

Maxwell, L. G. "Bougainville, New Guinea." Australasian Record, August 1, 1938.

McLaren, G. "From Fiji to New Guinea: In the Mission Ketch Veilomani." Australasian Record, December 1, 1930.

"Mission Boats." Record, January 29, 2000.

"A Mission Boat on the Rocks." Australasian Record, October 1, 1934.

"Missionary Volunteer Department Foreign Missions Offering, 1923." Australasian Record, May 28, 1923.

Mitchell, A. R. "The Bismarck Solomons Union Reports Consolidation and Advance." Australasian Record, January 31, 1966.

Mitchell, C. E. "Dellys Lemke obituary." Australasian Record, February 23, 1953.

Mitchell, C. E. "Papua to Australia on the 'Diari.'" Australasian Record, March 30, 1942.

Mitchell, C. E. "Visiting in Eastern Papua." Australasian Record, July 7, 1951.

Mitchell, C. E. "Visiting Manus in the Bismarck Archipelago." Australasian Record, November 15, 1948.

Mitchell, Kenneth C. "Dedication at Aore, New Hebrides." Australasian Record, May 26, 1947.

Moe, R. V. "Vanuatu Today." Australasian Record, October 9, 1982.

"New Boats." Record [South Pacific Division], December 8, 1990.

New Hebrides Mission Executive Committee Minutes. South Pacific Division of the General Conference Archives, Wahroonga, New South Wales, Australia.

"News from Pitcairn Island." Australasian Record, May 15, 1916.

Nicholson, D. "Kaoriof: A New Boat for Ambrym Mission." Australasian Record, October 8, 1923.

"No doubt our readers..." Australasian Record, February 11, 1952.

Nolan, H. W. "The Cruise of the MV Lelaman." Australasian Record, August 1, 1949.

"On Friday 7th October..." Australasian Record, October 24, 1949.

"On May 9 Pastor Lyndon wrote from Tahiti . . ." Australasian Record, June 11, 1917.

"On Sunday January 2..." Australasian Record, February 17, 1947.

"On the way from Sydney." Australasian Record, August 30, 1948.

"Opening Work on Vanua Levu, Fiji." Australasian Record, May 3, 1920.

"Our mission fleet of vessels..." Australasian Record, May 14, 1951.

"Our readers will be glad to know..." Australasian Record, February 6, 1950.

"Our readers will be grateful . . ." Australasian Record, October 31, 1949.

"Our Sabbath School Report." Australasian Record, March 27, 1916.

"Our third Sabbath School mission boat . . ." Australasian Record, September 29, 1925.

"Our Week of Prayer Offerings." Australasian Record, May 7, 1928.

Parker, C. H. "Good News from Fiji." Union Conference Record, August 20, 1906.

Parker, C. H. "Mualevu, Fiji." Union Conference Record, February 15, 1904.

Parker, C. H. "Mualevu, Lomaloma, Lau." Union Conference Record, February 1, 1905.

Parker, C. H. "Report of the Fiji Mission Field." Union Conference Record, October 1, 1906.

Parkinson, C. T. "Sepik Survey." Australasian Record, May 16, 1960.

Parmenter, V. B. "A New Day for Tonga." Australasian Record, March 26, 1979.

Pascoe, Cyril. "Flight from Bougainville." Australasian Record, September 28, 1942.

Pascoe, C. "New Britain Crew Goes to Collect Ka Seli." Australasian Record, February 2, 1959.

Pascoe, W. L. "The Harvest Truly Is Great." Australasian Record, October 23, 1950.

Pascoe, W. L. "The Ka Seli Blown ashore in Hurricane." Australasian Record, February 11, 1952.

"Pastor G. Peacock..." Australasian Record, May 27, 1935.

Peacock, G. "Survey of the New Hebrides." Australasian Record, July 15, 1935.

Peaty, N. K. "Ai Talai Takes to the Water." Australasian Record, August 9, 1976.

Perry, J. C. H. "Solomon Islands to Australia on the Melanesia." Australasian Record, March 30, 1942.

Peterson, Alfred W. "Dedication of the Nakalaji." Australasian Record, November 17, 1947.

Piez, E. R. "Training National Leaders." Australasian Record, August 15, 1966.

Piper, A. H. "Launch for the New Hebrides." Australasian Record, August 6, 1928.

Piper, A. H. "Mr. L. Halvorsen." Australasian Record, October 19, 1936.

Piper, H. E. "Another Mission Vessel Dedicated." Australasian Record, February 9, 1948.

Piper, H. E. "Mission Ship Dedicated to New Enterprise." Australasian Record, April 21, 1947.

"Pirates Attack Adventist Ministry Yacht." Australasian Record, June 5, 2004.

Pretyman, C. H. "Dedication of the Melanesia." Australasian Record, June 25, 1917.

Pretyman, C. H. "To Our Superintendants: Auxilliary Vessel for Fiji." Australasian Record, June 7, 1915.

Radley, J. C. "A Race with Death." Australasian Record, June 22, 1931.

Radley, J. C. "Fifty Years Ago in the Solomon Islands." Australasian Record, May 4, 1964.

Radley, J. C. "The Maiden Voyage of the Melanesia." Australasian Record, July 8, 1957.

Radley, Jack C. Diary entry for August 2 and 3, 1928. Unpublished record held in the personal collection of Rose-Marie Radley.

Radley, Rose-Marie. Captain Jack Radley and the Heyday of the Fleet Warburton, Victoria: Signs Publishing Company, 2018.

Raethel, E. A. "The Coming of a Ship." Australasian Record, August 8, 1954.

Ragoso, Kata. "War Years in the Solomons." Australasian Record, May 6, 1946.

"Reinforcements for the Solomon Islands: M. V. Ambon Sails on 2500-Mile Voyage to Guadalcanal." Australasian Record, October 7, 1946.

"Repaired and repainted..." Australasian Record, May 26, 1947.

Reye, Arnold. "They Did Return!" Journal of Pacific Adventist History 7, no. 1 (June 2007): 12.

Rudge, E. B. "Notes from Fiji." Australasian Record, November 12, 1928.

Rusa, George. The Floating Log. Cooranbong, NSW: Heather Dixon, 2005.

"Sending the New Hebrides Launch on Its Mission." Australasian Record, May 11, 1914.

"Sister Norman Ferris writes..." Australasian Record, March 30, 1936.

Smith, W. D. "To Our Young People." Australasian Record, November 18, 1929.

Solomon Islands Mission Executive Committee Minutes. South Pacific Division of the General Conference Archives, Wahroonga, New South Wales, Australia.

"Some of our readers may have heard..." Australasian Record, February 17, 1947.

"Spotlights on the Central Pacific." Australasian Record, May 9, 1955.

Stewart, A. G. "A Marvelous Transformation in the St Matthias Group, Territory of New Guinea." Australasian Record, July 4, 1932.

Stewart, A. G. "Among Volcanic Fires." Australasian Record, June 28, 1937.

Stewart, A. G. "An Auxilliary Vessel for Fiji: Our Greatest Material Need." Missionary Leader, June 1915.

Stewart, A. G. "Griffiths Francis Jones obituary." Australasian Record, October 7, 1940.

Stewart, A. G. "The Launching and Dedication of the Malalangi." Australasian Record, January 21, 1935.

Stewart, A. G. "Vice-President's Report of Our Island Mission Field." Australasian Record, September 28, 1931.

Stewart, G. G. "The First Voyage of the 'Messenger.'" Australasian Record, April 23, 1917.

Stewart, M. M. "New Mission Ship for the New Hebrides." Australasian Record, January 9, 1967.

Stratford, S. V. "Pastor A. S. Atkins Obituary." Australasian Record, June 22, 1942.

"Student campaign, Solomon Islands." Australasian Record, June 5, 1936.

Svensen, Randi. Wooden Boats, Iron Men: The Halvorsen Story. Sydney: Halstead Press, 2004.

"The latest mission ship." Australasian Record, June 20, 1949.

"The mission vessel
Leleo...
." Australasian Record, September 12, 1949.

"The Aore Council." Australasian Record, June 24, 1929.

"The New Memorial Launch for Fiji." Australasian Record, September 28, 1931.

"The Tragic Loss of Brother Jack Rowe." Australasian Record, August 26, 1946.

Thomson, A. C. "Jock's Great Missionary Journey." Australasian Record, October 24, 1955.

Timmins, Jeanette. "Larica." Australasian Record, October 23, 1978.

"To assist Captain Reece..." Australasian Record, August 16, 1948.

Townend, C. A. "Camp Meeting Papua-New-Guinea Style." Australasian Record, January 27, 1975.

Tucker, C. "What the Missionaries Found." Australasian Record, October 18, 1943.

Turner, W. G. "Appreciation." Australasian Record, June 22, 1931.

Turner, W. G. "Missionary Vessel: Le Phare." Australasian Record, November 3, 1930.

Turner, W. G. "Providing the Money." Australasian Record, January 21, 1935.

Tutty, R. H. "Back to the Admiralty Group." Australasian Record, September 12, 1938.

Tutty, R. H. "Bougainville." Australasian Record, January 30, 1928.

Tutty, R. H. "From Bougainville to Batuna." Australasian Record, August 9, 1926.

"Two Mission Vessels Dedicated." Australasian Record, March 3, 1947.

"Two new 28-foot launches..." Australasian Record, August 1, 1955.

"Unfortunately, the New Hebrides mission ship..." Australasian Record, March 30, 1964.

Watson, C. H. "A Message of Appreciation." Australasian Record, November 21, 1927.

Watts, K. E. "A Milestone Is Reached." Australasian Record, November 29, 1971.

"We gladly inform our readers..." Australasian Record, August 27, 1951.

"We Will Remember Them." Australasian Record, January 7, 1946.

White, E. E. "The MV Batuna Dedication." Australasian Record, April 19, 1948.

White, H. "Joyous Jubilee." Australasian Record, January 4, 1965.

White, Herb. "Put Put's day of Decisions." Australasian Record, July 18, 1938.

Wicks, H. B. P. "Visiting the Churches in the Western Solomons." Australasian Record, June 7, 1926.

Wilcox, M. C. "The Dedication of the Missionary Ship." ARH, October 14, 1890.

Young, Walter Fisher. "From Far Away Pitcairn: A miraculous Deliverance." Australasian Record, June 28, 1920.

Zeunert, W. E. "...and Bless Those Who Sail Them." Australasian Record, June 7, 1954.

---

NOTES

1. G. I. B., "A Trip to Pitcairn Island," ARH, April 24, 1888, 272.
2. A. J. Cudney, "From Honolulu to Pitcairn," ARH, August 21, 1888, 539.
3. "Is It the Phoebe Chapman?" ARH, February 3, 1891, 80.
4. R. R. Frame, "Building a Boat for God," ARH, November 25, 1965, 1-2.
5. Ibid.

6. M. C. Wilcox, "The Dedication of the Missionary Ship," ARH, October 14, 1890.
7. M. J. Bahler, "Sailing of the Pitcairn," ARH, November 4, 1890, 85.
8. E. H. Gates, "Last Cruise of the Pitcairn," Union Conference Record, July 12, 1899, 2; Malcolm J. Bull, "Halfway to Heaven: A Century of Adventism on Pitcairn Island, 1886-1986," unpublished manuscript 1986, South Pacific Division Heritage Centre, Avondale University College, Cooranbong, New South Wales.
9. J. E. Fulton, "The Wreck of the Cina," Union Conference Record, January 1, 1902, 15.
10. "Items of General Interest," Union Conference Record, October 1, 1902, 8; E. H. Gates, "From San Francisco to Sydney," Union Conference Record, July 1, 1903, 6.
11. B. J. Cady, "The Schooner Tiare," Union Conference Record, September 21, 1908, 38-39.
12. E. H. Gates, "Mission Notes," Union Conference Record, December 1, 1901, 7; "General Letter from Pastor E. H. Gates," Union Conference Record, April 1, 1903, 5; Stephen J. Currow, "Pioneer Missionaries to Fiji: Arthur and Louis Currow," Journal of Pacific Adventist History 2, no. 2 (December 2002): 29-37.
13. C. H. Parker, "Mualevu, Fiji," Union Conference Record, February 15, 1904, 2; "The little cutter...," Union Conference Record, August 1, 1904, 2; C. H. Parker, "Mualevu, Lomaloma, Lau," Union Conference Record, February 1, 1905, 5; C. H. Parker, "Fiji," Union Conference Record, April 30, 1906, 3; C. H. Parker, "Report of the Fiji Mission Field," Union Conference Record, October 1, 1906, 33.
14. C. H. Parker, "Good News from Fiji," Union Conference Record, August 20, 1906, 7; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, September 13, 1908, 64.
15. B. J. Cady, "Words of Courage from Central Polynesia," Australasian Record, September 4, 1911, 3; H. R. Martin, "Educational work in Fiji," The Missionary Leader, July 1927, 2.
16. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, April 20, 1915, 235; A. G. Stewart, "An Auxilliary Vessel for Fiji: Our Greatest Material Need," Missionary Leader, June 1915, 14-15.
17. "News from Pitcairn Island," Australasian Record, May 15, 1916, 2.
18. "In a letter from Brother Adams...," Australasian Record, June 5, 1916, 8; Muriel Adams, "By Faith Alone," Australasian Record, May 14, 1956, 3.
19. "The Launching of the 'Messenger,'" Australasian Record, March 12, 1917, 8.
20. G. G. Stewart, "The First Voyage of the Messenger," Australasian Record, April 23, 1917, 8.

21. Walter Fisher Young, "From Far Away Pitcairn: A miraculous Deliverance," Australasian Record, June 28, 1920, 3.
22. H. C. White, "Going to Camp-Meeting, Fiji," Australasian Record, August 10, 1925, 3.
23. "Sending the New Hebrides Launch on Its Mission," Australasian Record, May 11, 1914.
24. Ross James, "News from Big Bay North Santo," Australasian Record, May 28, 1923, 5.
25. A. G. Stewart, "Griffiths Francis Jones obituary," Australasian Record, October 7, 1940, 7.
26. E. H. Gates, "From San Francisco to Sydney, Concluded," Union Conference Record, July 15, 1903, 4.
27. A. G. Stewart, "Griffiths Francis Jones obituary," Australasian Record, October 7, 1940, 7.
28. G. F. Jones, "Solomon Islands," Australasian Record, August 10, 1914, 4; A. R. Barrett, "The Fifteenth Anniversary," Australasian Record, September 2, 1929, 4; J. C. Radley, "Fifty Years ago in the Solomon Islands," Australasian Record, May 4, 1964, 1; H. White, "Joyous Jubilee," Australasian Record, January 4, 1965, 8-9.
29. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, June 11, 1921, 229.
30. J. C. Radley, "Fifty Years ago in the Solomon Islands," Australasian Record, May 4, 1964, 1.
31. "Our Sabbath School Report," Australasian Record, March 27, 1916, 5.
32. "A Motor Boat for the Solomon Islands," Australasian Record, December 13, 1915, 7.
33. "Our Sabbath School Report," Australasian Record, March 27, 1916, 5.
34. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, June 26, 1916, 411.
35. C. H. Pretyman, "Dedication of the Melanesia," Australasian Record, June 25, 1917, 1-4.
36. "Missionary Volunteer Department Foreign Missions Offering, 1923," Australasian Record, May 28, 1923, 3-4.
37. G. F. Jones, "The Melanesia: Her Maiden Trip," Australasian Record, August 27, 1917, 2; M. V. Jones, "En Route to the Solomon Islands," Australasian Record, August 27, 1917, 3; J. C. Radley, "The Maiden Voyage of the Melanesia," Australasian Record, July 8, 1957, 1.
38. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, November 6, 1917, 639-640.
39. J. C. Radley, "The Maiden Voyage of the Melanesia," Australasian Record, July 8, 1957, 1; 8-9.

40. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, January 6, 1918, 677.
41. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, June 15, 1920, 8.
42. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, November 4, 1920, 109; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, November 17, 1920, 151-152.
43. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, December 22, 1921, 358-359; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, September 20, 1922, 459; John D. Anderson and Mary Guinevere Anderson, "To Melanesia with Love; Part One," Australasian Record, July 7, 1980, 10.
44. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, August 21, 1924, 263; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, August 22, 1924, 264-265; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, August 24, 1925, 381.
45. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, January 6, 1918, 677.
46. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, June 7, 1921, 218-219.
47. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, July 24, 1917, 563-564.
48. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes September 4, 1917, 599.
49. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, September 1, 1924, 281.
50. A. W. Dawson, "Australasian Conference Association Limited," Australasian Record, December 4, 1950, 4.
51. "Opening Work on Vanua Levu, Fiji," Australasian Record, May 3, 1920, 4.
52. Raymond Coombe, "Personal Reflections," Australasian Record, August 9, 1976, 9; N. K. Peatey, "Ai Talai Takes to the Water," Australasian Record, August 9, 1976, 8.
53. "Our Work in Ha'apai," Australasian Record, October 17, 1921, 6.
54. D. Nicholson, "'Kaoriof:' A New Boat for Ambrym Mission," Australasian Record, October 8, 1923, 6.
55. "Hurricane in the New Hebrides," Australasian Record, April 29, 1940, 4.
56. J. D. Anderson, "Our First Sabbath School Mission Boat Reaches the Solomons," Australasian Record, June 29, 1925, 8.
57. "A Motor Boat for the Solomon Islands," Australasian Record, December 13, 1915, 7.

58. H. B. P. Wicks, "Visiting the Churches in the Western Solomons," Australasian Record, June 7, 1926, 4; R. H. Tutty, "From Bougainville to Batuna," Australasian Record, August 9, 1926, 4.
59. R. H. Tutty, "Bougainville," Australasian Record, January 30, 1928, 5.
60. A. W. Martin, "Church Dedication at Buini Tusu, Solomon Islands," Australasian Record, June 11, 1934, 4; "Sabbath School Missionary Exercises," Missionary Leader, October 1934, 7.
61. T. W. Hammond, "Our New Boats for the Solomons," Australasian Record, March 23, 1925, 1, 4, 5; "Sabbath School Missionary Exercises," Missionary Leader, October 1934, 7.
62. T. W. Hammond, "Our New Boats for the Solomons," Australasian Record, March 23, 1925, 1, 4, 5; David H. Gray, "A Letter to our Sabbath Schools," Australasian Record, November 9, 1925, 8.
63. "Sabbath School Missionary Exercises," Missionary Leader, October 1934, 7; Solomon Islands Mission Executive Committee Minutes, December 4, 1935, 239.
64. "The Aore Council," Australasian Record, June 24, 1929, 8.
65. A. H. Piper, "Launch for the New Hebrides," Australasian Record, August 6, 1928, 3; W. D. Smith, "To Our Young People," Australasian Record, November 18, 1929, 3-4.
66. J. C. Radley, Diary entry for August 2 and 3, 1928, unpublished record held in the personal collection of Rose-Marie Radley.
67. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, May 16, 1933, 366.
68. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, May 11, 1926, 485.
69. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, June 20, 1933, 376.
70. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, June 28, 1943, 415; "Captain Elijah of Fiji," Australasian Record, June 16, 1947, 3.
71. A. G. Stewart, "The Auxiliary Ketch Veilomani," Australasian Record, September 19, 1927, 8. "The Mission Ketch Veilomani," Australasian Record, December 12, 1927, 6.
72. G. McLaren, "From Fiji to New Guinea: In the Mission Ketch Veilomani," Australasian Record, December 1, 1930, 2.
73. "During the time of the volcanic eruption...", Australasian Record, June 21, 1937, 8.
74. E. B. Rudge, "Notes from Fiji," Australasian Record, November 12, 1928, 8.

75. T. W. Hammond, "Our Week of Prayer Offerings," Australasian Record, May 7, 1928, 2.
76. A. G. Stewart, "A Memorial," Australasian Record, January 5, 1931, 2. [Ruth N.] Lane, "The Sad Story Told," Australasian Record, January 5, 1931, 3;
77. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, February 10, 1932, 210.
78. W. N. Lock, "A Visit along the Coast of Papua," Australasian Record, August 26, 1929, 3.
79. Randi Svensen, Wooden Boats, Iron Men: The Halvorsen Story, (Sydney: Halstead Press, 2004), 50-52, 92-93.
80. New Hebrides Mission Executive Committee Minutes, May 27, 1930, 39; Anna L. Hindson, "What Progress Are We Making?" Australasian Record, June 23, 1930, 5.
81. W. G. Turner, "Missionary Vessel: 'Le Phare,'" Australasian Record, November 3, 1930, 4; J. C. Radley, "The Maiden Trip of the Le Phare," Australasian Record, February 9, 1931, 2-3; A. W. Anderson, "Cause for Rejoicing," Australasian Record, November 17, 1930, 8.
82. J. C. Radley, "A Race with Death," Australasian Record, June 22, 1931, 2-3.
83. W. G. Turner, "Appreciation," Australasian Record, June 22, 1931, 8.
84. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, April 19, 1943, 391.
85. "The New Memorial Launch for Fiji," Australasian Record, September 28, 1931, 6.
86. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, March 13, 1941, 881.
87. A. F. Parker, "Dedication of Boat for Malaita Mission," Australasian Record, October 31, 1932, 3; Australasian Inter Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, March 25, 1954, 1198.
88. A. W. Anderson, "Dedication of the Papuan Mission Boat," Australasian Record, June 19, 1933, 4-5; Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, November 5, 1959, 163.
89. A. G. Stewart, "The Launching and Dedication of the Malalangi," Australasian Record, January 21, 1935, 6; W. G. Turner, "Providing the Money," Australasian Record, January 21, 1935, 6-7; "Boat for Mussau," Australasian Record, March 4, 1935, 8.
90. A. G. Stewart, "Among Volcanic Fires," Australasian Record, June 28, 1937, 2.
91. Robert D. Dixon, A Brief History of Mussau, Emira and Tench Islands (Cooranbong, New South Wales: Robert Dixon, 1981), 82-85.

92. "Pastor G. Peacock, Superintendent....," Australasian Record, May 27, 1935, 8.
93. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, February 11, 1936, 750; R. H. Tutty, "Back to the Admiralty Group," Australasian Record, September 12, 1938, 3.
94. A. H. Piper, "Mr. L. Halvorsen," Australasian Record, October 19, 1936, 7.
95. A. R. Barrett, "Dedication and Farewell," Australasian Record, February 8, 1932, 2; J. D. Anderson, "Solomon Islands," Australasian Record, July 4, 1932, 3.
96. "A Mission Boat on the Rocks," Australasian Record, October 1, 1934, 8.
97. Kata Ragoso, "War Years in the Solomons," Australasian Record, May 6, 1946, 4.
98. W. O. Broad, "Launching a New Boat," Australasian Record, January 13, 1936, 2; Solomon Islands Mission Executive Committee Minutes, June 23, 1940, 408.
99. "Sister Norman Ferris writes....," Australasian Record, March 30, 1936, 8.
100. W. O. Broad, "Launching a New Boat," Australasian Record, January 13, 1936, 2; Solomon Islands Mission Executive Committee Minutes, May 23, 1935, 220A; Solomon Islands Mission Executive Committee Minutes, June 4, 1936, 271; George Rusa, The Floating Log (Cooranbong, NSW: Heather Dixon, 2005), 141.
101. Herb White, "Put Put's day of Dedications," Australasian Record, July 18, 1938, 4-5.
102. L. G. Maxwell, "Bougainville, New Guinea," Australasian Record, August 1, 1938, 4.
103. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, March 13, 1941, 881.
104. Solomon Islands Mission Executive Committee Minutes, June 28, 1937, 300; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, August 03, 1937, 188; Solomon Islands Mission Executive Committee Minutes, November 15, 1939, 399.
105. "During the time of the volcanic eruption....," Australasian Record, June 21, 1937, 8; A. J. Campbell, "Earthquakes and Volcanoes," Australasian Record, June 28, 1937, 3.
106. L. G. Maxwell, "Bougainville, New Guinea," Australasian Record, August 1, 1938, 4.
107. J. C. H. Perry, "Solomon Islands to Australia on the 'Melanesia,'" Australasian Record, March 30, 1942, 3.
108. Robert D. Dixon, A Brief History of Mussau, Emira and Tench Islands (Cooranbong, New South Wales: Robert Dixon, 1981), 82-85.

109. Ibid; See Atkins, Stanley Arthur and Nancy Ross (Cornish) and Collett, Trevor David.
110. C. E. Mitchell, "Papua to Australia on the 'Diari,'" Australasian Record, March 30, 1942, 3-4.
111. See Radley, John (Jack) Clifton and Rose Merle Martin.
112. "Diari to be made available to A.N.G.A.U.," Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, July 21, 1943, 448; "Grant to A.N.G.A.U. for Native Medical Work in New Guinea," Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, July 21, 1943, 448; J. C. Radley Service Record, Australian Army, 1943-1946, personal archival collection of Rose-Marie Radley; G. Brandstater, "Life Sketch of the Late J.C. Radley," Australasian Record, April 1, 1968, 14; A.J. Campbell, "The Diari Comes to Aroma," Australasian Record, June 5, 1944, 3; A. J. Campbell, "After Four Years," Australasian Record, February 25, 1946, 5.
113. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, December 7, 1943, 575.
114. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, February 11, 1944, 589.
115. Ibid.
116. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, January 14, 1947, 365.
117. R. R. Frame, "New Mission Ship Sails for Papua," Australasian Record, November 21, 1960, 1.
118. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, July 30, 1942, 227; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, October 27, 1942, 321; Arnold Reye, "They Did Return!" Journal of Pacific Adventist History 7, no. 1 (June 2007): 12.
119. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, April 19, 1943, 391.
120. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, April 13, 1943, 390.
121. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, March 13, 1941, 881.
122. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, January 18, 1944, 590.
123. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, September 21, 1943, 482.
124. Kata Ragoso, "War years in the Solomons," Australasian Record, May 6, 1946, 4-5.
125. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, March 23, 1948, 721; Rose-Marie Radley, Captain Jack Radley and the Heyday of the Fleet (Warburton, Victoria: Signs Publishing, Warburton, Victoria, 2018), 186-202.

126. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, August 15, 1944, 579; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, March 27, 1946, 184;
127. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, July 3, 1945, 872;
128. W. G. Ferris, "The Loss of the Endeavour," Australasian Record, February 6, 1950, 3, 6, 8; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, December 3, 1950, 468.
129. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, September 9, 1945, 902; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, October 16, 1945, 77.
130. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, October 30, 1945, 85.
131. "Some of our readers may have heard...," Australasian Record, February 17, 1947, 8.
132. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, February 4, 1947, 376-377.
133. "Repaired and repainted...," Australasian Record, May 26, 1947, 8.
134. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, October 10, 1948, 880.
135. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, April 30, 1946, 203.
136. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, April 18, 1946, 198.
137. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, July 11, 1946, 227; "Reinforcements for the Solomon Islands: M. V. Ambon Sails on 2500-Mile Voyage to Guadalcanal," Australasian Record, October 7, 1946, 4.
138. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, March 23, 1948, 732; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, May 4, 1948, 741.
139. Australasian Inter Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, February 15, 1949, 39; Australasian Inter Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, April 14, 1949, 75-76.
140. "The Tragic Loss of Brother Jack Rowe," Australasian Record, August 26, 1946, 8; C. S. Palmer, "The Tragedy at Buca Bay," Australasian Record, September 9, 1946, 4.
141. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, September 24, 1946, 259-261.

142. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, October 2, 1946, 268.; Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, May 25, 1948, 753.
143. "Two Mission Vessels Dedicated," Australasian Record, March 3, 1947, 4-5.
144. T. C. Lawson, "A New Ship for Papua," Australasian Record, June 23, 1947, 8; T. C. Lawson, Sabbath School News Flash," Australasian Record, September 29, 1947, 8.
145. "On Sunday January 2....," Australasian Record, February 17, 1947, 8. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, March 13, 1947, 397.
146. Australasian Inter Union Conference Executive Committee, April 18, 1950, 323; Australasian Inter Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, October 12, 1948, 879-880.
147. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, September 24, 1946, 259-261
148. "Two Mission Vessels Dedicated," Australasian Record, March 3, 1947, 4-5.
149. Australasian Inter Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, September 16, 1952, 832.
150. H. E. Piper, "Mission Ship Dedicated to New Enterprise," Australasian Record, April 21, 1947, 6.
151. A. C. Thomson, "Jock's Great Missionary Journey," Australasian Record, October 24, 1955, 1-2.
152. Kenneth C. Mitchell, "Dedication at Aore, New Hebrides," Australasian Record, May 26, 1947, 3-4;
153. Central Pacific Union Mission Executive Committee Minutes, February 7, 1950, 106.
154. "After a brief dedicatory service....," Australasian Record, July 7, 1947, 8.
155. W. L. Pascoe, "The Harvest Truly Is Great," Australasian Record, October 23, 1950, 5.
156. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, April 21, 1959, 84.
157. Alfred W. Peterson, "Dedication of the Nakalagi," Australasian Record, November 17, 1947, 3.
158. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, January 13, 1958, 1853.
159. "Unfortunately, the New Hebrides mission ship....," Australasian Record, March 30, 1964, 16.
160. H. E. Piper, "Another Mission Vessel Dedicated," Australasian Record, February 9, 1948, 4.

161. C. E. Mitchell, "Visiting Manus in the Bismarch Archipelago," Australasian Record, November 15, 1948, 3.
162. E. E. White, "The MV Batuna Dedication," Australasian Record, April 19, 1948, 4; R. E. Hare, "They That Go Down To The Sea In Ships," Review and Herald, June 24, 1948, 1, 19; Rose-Marie Radley, Captain Jack Radley and the Heyday of the Fleet (Warburton, Victoria: Signs Publishing Company, 2018), 314 - 321.
163. "To assist Captain Reece...," Australasian Record, August 16, 1948, 8; "On the way from Sydney," Australasian Record, August 30, 1948, 8.
164. Bruce Manners, "New Life for Old Mission Ship," Record, February 7, 2004, 3.
165. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, September 30, 1948, 876; "Another 45-foot mission vessel...," Australasian Record, October 4, 1948, 8; "Caught in a severe...," Australasian Record, October 11, 1948, 8.
166. "Another 45-foot vessel...," Australasian Record, January 24, 1949, 8.
167. A. H. Ferris, "Dedication of the Ka Sali [sic]," Australasian Record, May 2, 1949, 4.
168. C. Pascoe, "New Britain Crew Goes to Collect Ka Seli," Australasian Record, February 2, 1959, 2.
169. "The latest mission ship...," Australasian Record, June 20, 1949, 8.
170. H. W. Nolan, "The Cruise of the MV Lelaman," Australasian Record, August 1, 1949, 3.
171. "In Perils by Sea," Australasian Record, February 19, 1951, 3-4.
172. "The mission vessel
Leleo
...," Australasian Record, September 12, 1949, 8.
173. "On Friday 7th October...," Australasian Record, October 24, 1949, 8.
174. "Our readers will be glad to know...," Australasian Record, February 6, 1950, 8.
175. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, May 24, 1973, 932.
176. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, October 12, 1948, 880; E. W. Howse, "Melanesia Retired," Australasian Record, April 4, 1949, 8.
177. "No doubt our readers...," Australasian Record, February 11, 1952, 8

178. R. R. Frame, "Heard at the CPUM Conclave," Australasian Record, February 24, 1958, 8.
179. George Rusa, Floating Log (Cooranbong, New South Wales: Heather Dixon, 2005), 146.
180. A. R. Mitchell, "The Bismarck Solomons Union Reports Consolidation and Advance," Australasian Record, January 31, 1966, 2-3.
181. S. K. Gillis, "Dedication of the Maino II," Australasian Record, May 24, 1948, 4.
182. Australasian Inter Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, March 25, 1954, 1197.
183. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, March 30 1967; K. E. Watts, "A Milestone Is Reached," Australasian Record, November 29, 1971, 10.
184. "A new launch, the Kambubu...," Australasian Record, November 15, 1948, 8.
185. "It will be recalled...," Australasian Record, September 27, 1965, 16.
186. Coral Sea Union Mission Executive Committee Minutes, August 12, 1951, 1.
187. Rose-Marie Radley, Captain Jack Radley and the Heyday of the Fleet (Warburton, Victoria: Signs Publishing Company, 2018), 294-296.
188. Mrs. J. R. Masters, "Marine Service Trains National Captains and Engineers," Australasian Record, May 31, 1965, 1-2.
189. J. R. Masters, "Your Marine Department," Australasian Record, March 3, 1958, 2-3.
190. Ibid.
191. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, August 1, 1972, 640.
192. "Our mission fleet of vessels...," Australasian Record, May 14, 1951, 8.
193. Ibid.
194. R. M. Ellison, "A History-Making Meeting," Australasian Record, December 10, 1951, 4.
195. C. T. Parkinson, "Sepik Survey," Australasian Record, May 16, 1960, 1-3; Roy Aldridge, "Five Years in the Sepik— Resourceful Practical and Competent Ministry," Journal of Pacific Adventist History 7, no. 2 (June 2007): 30-33.
196. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, July 13, 1965, 604.
197. "We gladly inform our readers...," Australasian Record, August 27, 1951, 8.

198. Australasian Inter Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, March 6, 1956, 1543.
199. "A Fatal Accident in Papua: Missionary Wife and Two Children Drowned," Australasian Record, January 26, 1953, 4; C. E. Mitchell, "Dellys Lemke obituary," Australasian Record, February 23, 1953, 7; Australasian Inter Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, January 6, 1953, 961.
200. Australasian Inter Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, April 20, 1953, 1030; W. E. Zeunert, "...and Bless Those Who Sail Them," Australasian Record, June 7, 1954, 5.
201. "Two new 28-foot launches..." Australasian Record, August 1, 1955, 8.
202. Bismarck Solomons Union Mission Executive Committee Minutes, June 1, 1971, 57.
203. Merian M. Cook, "Missionary Nurse at Kukundu [sic]," Australasian Record, August 14, 1961, 6-7.
204. Australasian Division Executive Committee Executive Committee Minutes, August 6, 1957, 1757.
205. Australasian Division Executive Committee Executive Committee Minutes, January 13, 1958, 1853.
206. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, August 22, 1972, 651.
207. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, July 5, 1961, 496.
208. R. R. Frame, "New Mission Ship Sails for Papua." Australasian Record, November 21, 1960, 1-2.
209. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, November 24, 1982, 562; Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, September 6, 1983, 717.
210. George Rusa, Floating Log (Cooranbong, New South Wales: Heather Dixon, 2005), 156.
211. A. R. Mitchell, "The Bismarck-Solomons Union Reports Consolidation and Advance," Australasian Record, January 31, 1966, 3.
212. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, April 3, 1984, 842.
213. A. R. Mitchell, "The Bismarck-Solomons Union Reports Consolidation and Advance," Australasian Record, January 31, 1966, 3.
214. R. W. Hall, "The Hand of the Lord at Batuna," Australasian Record, July 29, 1974, 6.
215. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, April 26, 1983, 621.
216. See Pathfinder. O. D. F. McCutcheon, "Progress in the Coral Sea," Australasian Record, November 25, 1974, 12.

217. R. W. Richter, "Dedication of a new ship," Australasian Record, August 8, 1966, 1; E. R. Piez, "Training National Leaders," Australasian Record, August 15, 1966, 8.
218. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, April 26, 1983, 622.
219. M. M. Stewart, "New Mission Ship for the New Hebrides," Australasian Record, January 9, 1967, 4-5.
220. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, August 9, 1971, 326; R. V. Moe, "Vanuatu Today," Australasian Record, October 9, 1982, 8.
221. See Pathfinder; E. R. Piez, "A Dream becomes a Reality," Australasian Record, February 26, 1968, 6-7.
222. K. E. Watts, "A Milestone Is Passed," Australasian Record, November 29, 1971, 10; Central Pacific Union Mission Executive Committee Minutes, January 13, 1971, 29.
223. Sandra Roberts, "Aoba District gets a New Boat," Australasian Record, January 8, 1973, 2.
224. A. E. Jones, "The Earth Trembled During Bismarck Solomons Union Mission Annual Meeting Held December 1967," Australasian Record, February 26, 1968, 6-7.
225. Ibid.
226. Coral Sea Union Mission Executive Committee Minutes, December 20, 1967, 1405.
227. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, February 29, 1972, 541; Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, May 2, 1972, 564; Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, August 1, 1972, 641; Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, August 22, 1972, 651.
228. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, November 21, 1974, 1436; Len G. Larwood, "New Ship for Atoifi," Australasian Record, November 1, 1976, 1-2.
229. R. V. Moe, "Vanuatu Today," Australasian Record, October 9, 1982, 8.
230. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, November 24, 1982, 562; David Rogers, past principal of Aore School, email to editor Barry Oliver, March 26, 2020.
231. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, March 3, 1983, 607; Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, April 26, 1983, 622; Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, April 3, 1984, 842.
232. N. K. Peatey, "Ai Talai II Takes to the Water," Australasian Record, August 9, 1976, 8-9.

233. Australasian Division Executive Committee Minutes, November 21, 1974, 1436.
234. "New Boats," Record [South Pacific Division], December 8, 1990, 9.
235. "Mission Boats," Record [South Pacific Division], January 29, 2000, 3.
236. V. B. Parmenter, "A New Day for Tonga," Australasian Record, March 26, 1979, 5.
237. Edwin Schwisow, "North America Helps Pacific Islands," Australasian Record, April 13, 1996, 13.
238. Kelle Hancock "Pirates Attack Adventist Ministry Yacht," Australasian Record, June 5, 2004, 7.
239. "Health Yacht Dedicated Despite Setbacks," Australasian Record, October 29, 2005, 5
240. See Sonship; Rose-Marie Radley, Captain Jack Radley and the Heyday of the Fleet, Warburton, Victoria: Signs Publishing Company, 2018), 385-387.
241. "Our Week of Prayer Offerings," Australasian Record, May 7, 1928, 2.
242. W. N. Lock, "Boat Building in Papua," Australasian Record, August 4, 1930, 5.
243. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, February 10, 1932, 210.
244. Australasian Union Conference Executive Committee Minutes, August 20, 1946, 248.
245. F. T. Maberly, "New Craft for Mission Field," Australasian Record, June 26, 1967, 1.
246. N. K. Peatey, "Ai Talai II Takes to the Water," Australasian Record, August 9, 1976, 8-9.

---

encyclopedia.adventist.org is an official website of the Seventh-day Adventist World Church

© 2020 General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists 12501 Old Columbia Pike Silver Spring , MD 20904 USA 301-680-6000