Background

In 1888, Francis I. U. Dolphijn of Kekam, while walking on the coastal land of Ghana, came across a tract on Sabbath-keeping and became the first Seventh-day Adventist in Ghana.<sup>3</sup> Through his efforts the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists in 1894 commissioned the Gold Coast Mission to oversee Ghana and other parts of West Africa. In 1914, through the initiative of W. H. Lewis, the first president of Gold Coast Mission, chose Asante Agona as the mission headquarters. This effort brought the Seventh-day Adventist message closer to the people of Ashanti. In 1918 some local people brought the Adventist message to Asante Bekwai, but the presence of Adventism was very low until Pastor Jesse Clifford came to Ghana from the United States in the late 1920s. His coming cemented the growth of the Church in Bekwai and its environs, which saw leaders of the Church like Jan Paulsen, former president of the world Church, who even had his ordination in Bekwai; Matthew Ango Bediako, former Executive Secretary of the world Church; and Ted Wilson, the current president of the world Church; all of whom contributed to the growth of the Church in Bekwai. The first Ministerial Training and Teacher Training School was established in the 1930s to oversee the training of pastors for the ministry. In 1945 this school became a secondary school and it was the first to be established in Ghana. In that same year, Asante Bekwai hosted the West Africa Union Mission headquarters to serve the whole of West Africa.<sup>4</sup>

Reorganization of Ghana Fields

In 1977 Ghana Mission was reorganized to become Ghana Conference, which was later reorganized to be Central Ghana Conference and South Ghana Mission.<sup>5</sup> The year 1996 saw the creation of South Central Ghana Administrative Unit from the Central Ghana Conference, and in 1999 it became South Central Ghana Conference led by pastor Israel Nana Tuffour as president; Pastor E. Y. Frimpong, the executive secretary; and Elder Opong Mensah as the treasurer.<sup>6</sup> Ashanti South Ghana Conference later emerged from South Central Ghana Conference, but it started as an administrative unit.

West-Central Africa Division Inspection Team

In the middle of August 2014, the WAD Inspection Team composed of Pastor Onaolapo Ajibade (WAD secretary), Elder Boadi Mensah (assistant treasurer), and Pastor Daniel Opoku Boateng (Ministerial secretary), visited and were satisfied with the performance of the administrative unit. On November 1, 2014, conference status was granted. This change of status was voted during the 2014 year-end meeting of the WAD Executive Committee at Abidjan, and the beginning date for conference status was January 2015.<sup>7</sup>
